Seeing Stars

Everywhere we look, we see stars. Our friends, peers, and classmates, whether actors, students, athletes, artists, or musicians, shine above the rest. Each and every one of us possesses some talent, some trait that uniquely sets us apart. Within every student exists the potential to be great, to be successful, to be happy. Walk through the halls and notice the talented people; we should look in the mirror and be proud of our own accomplishments. Someday we will look back on our experiences here...

and we will see stars.

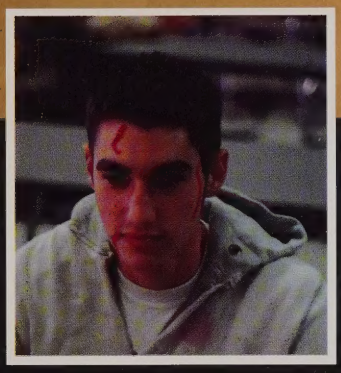
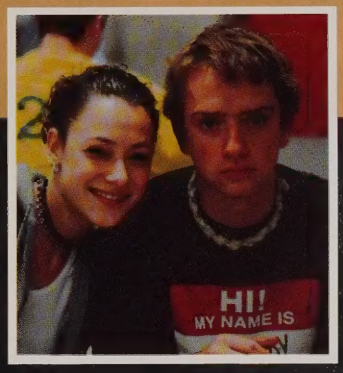
Students Stay Busy Through Activities



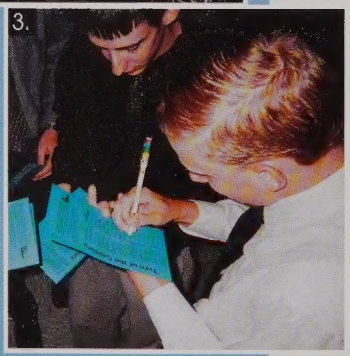


Students' lives were hardly restricted to pure academia. School-related activities did, however, occupy a great portion of the social lives of students from all grades. Students took part in formal events such as the Ring Ceremony, Homecoming, Prom, and Graduation. Additionally, traditions including Spirit Week, Powder Puff, and the Senior Pool Party and Banquet were not to be missed. Finally, student entertainers participated in elaborate dramatic productions. The efforts of enthusiastic students contributed to a more relaxed and enjoyable school experience.

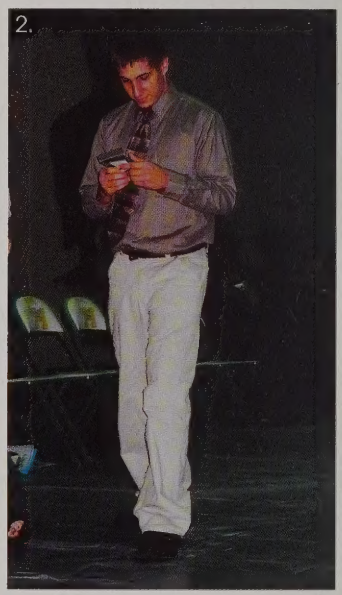
TWIST AND SHOUT

Class Presidents Lighten the Mood

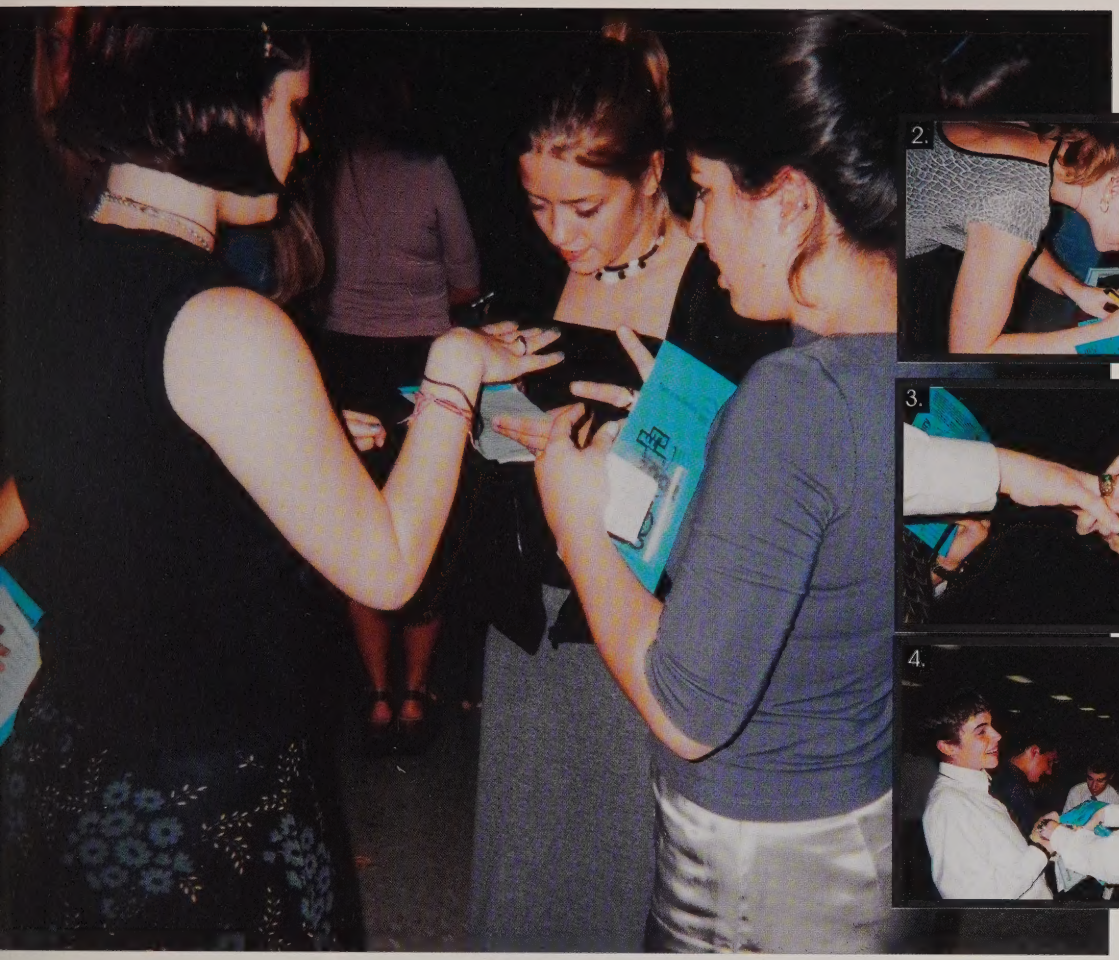
On October 2, 2000, the Junior class excitedly filed into the gym to receive their class rings. Many family members, as well as friends, gathered to watch the ceremony. The mood was lightened when Senior Class President Courtney Magill went to present Junior Class President Jeanne Marsh with her ring. Magill had left Marsh's ring underneath her seat, and since they had similar rings, she slipped hers off and gave it to Jeanne. "When I went up there and saw that she didn't have my ring, I dropped hers because I was so surprised and confused," Marsh said. Courtney was able to give Jeanne her actual ring after the ceremony when the students gathered in the commons for a reception. Along with eating cake and punch, students milled around the cafeteria searching for friends to turn their rings. This year's goal was 102 turns for the Class of 2002.



1. Jenna Sommer presents Taylor Payne with his ring. 2. Christen Short looks on as Rachel McCray turns Lauren Nofzinger's ring. 3. Stephen Walker and Brydon Cooke exchange signature sheets.



1. Jen Soares, Rachel McCray, Jeanne Marsh, Brooke Bredel, Jenna Sommer, and Lindsay Breissinger proudly flaunt their rings for the camera. 2. Chris Lima admires his ring before he removes it from the package. 3. Junior girls show-off their new rings at the reception following the ceremony.



1. Juniors Dianna Duddy, Nicole Trautman, and Kristen Reyes turn each others' rings and sign the "ring sheets." 2. Junior Beth McLane signs her name to show she turned her friend's ring. 3. Turning a ring toward the pinkie finger is the traditional way to turn a ring; turning it the other way will lock it. 4. Juniors Jeremy Duvall and Tyler Anderson enjoy the reception.

BRING IT ON...

Juniors and Seniors Show Their Stuff at Powder Puff

Time and effort paid off in a Powder Puff game that challenged Seniors and Juniors alike. Rivalry and school spirit filled the stands as cheerleaders and players took their places. "It was interesting to see everyone switch roles and compete with each other," Junior Cliff Sowers said. Both teams practiced only twice for this night when women ruled the stadium. Play after play, the two teams fought offensively and defensively to prove that they were number one. The Junior team executed a double-reverse play that faked out the Senior defensive line and led to a touchdown. However, the Senior girls fought back by running a sweep to win the game. After a tough competition, the Seniors came out on top with a two point victory in a fairly-refereed game.

PRIORITY MALES

Upperclassman Caws Strut Their Stuff

Many young male students possess amazing appearances and talents which are never noticed by their peers and teachers. For one evening each year, these special qualities are brought to light. Mr. Clover Hill was an exhibition showcase in which a select few male upper-classmen attempt to win over the crowd. The fifth annual pageant included singing, dancing, comedy -- and 16 contestants at the mercy of hundreds of adoring females. In the end, the judges (mothers of the SCA representatives) were most impressed by Senior Don Principe's "Ode to Clover Hill" performance and awarded to him the coveted title. Seniors Dan Nichols and Jabarie Brown came in as first and second runners-up, respectively. "Mr. Clover Hill didn't even feel like a competition because we were all having fun," Senior Keith Bachman said. WINTER SNOWS BRING SPRING SHOWS

Drama students produce the final performances of the year

Audiences were amazed by the talented theater productions- Clover Hill Live and 13 Past Midnight- as some students gave their final performances onstage. True to tradition, Clover Hill Live was written and produced by the students involved, bringing to life the inside jokes and situations unique to the school. Returning this year were familiar sketches such as the Ode to a Lemon, the ever popular Faculty Fued, and annual news reported by Senior Tom Keller. In addition to the regulars, numerous guest appearances and debuting acts were showcased.

In the Senior show, 13 Past Midnight, however, theater Seniors combined excellent drama with mystery to produce the last performance of the year. "Getting to work with such great people is mainly about gaining lasting friendships and expressing your talent, while still entertaining the audiences," Amanda Emma said. 13 Past Midnight replicated the events and mystique of a murder mystery, complete with likely suspects, snooping journalists, and a cast of colorful characters. Amazingly enough, the whole show was put together in less than a month, yet still brought tears to the audience and cast alike.

A WISH IS GRANTED

Before the Ball

As the season for prom drew near, students had many things to do in preparation for he special night. A month before the long awaited evening, many students were already earching for dates. For some girls, the most important aspect of prom was finding the erfect dress; one that no one else would have. On average, each girl spent between $150 nd $250 on her dress. After matching their dates' dresses with their ties,vests,and tuxes, he guys ended up paying approximately $100; however, this price was merely for enting the tuxedo -- at least the girls got to keep their dresses! In the rush of preparing or the night, hair appointments were made and hundreds of corsages and boutineers vere ordered. After dates were found and attire was purchased, it was time to make inner reservations. Many classy restaurants were booked with large groups of prom-oers. Also, many couples decided to ride in style and rented a limo. Even though the vening proved to be an expensive one, students agree that the time spent with thier riends and dates, and the excitement of the night made all the effort in preparation well vorth it. A wish had been granted and the ball was about to begin...

ONCE UPON A TIME...

Students Make Their Own Fairy Tale

As the couples arrived, they were overwhelmed with the decorations created by the Juniors. Flowers and ivy lined the room, surrounding a bridge that was constructed for the couples to enter the castle. Two knights stood guard in front of the balloon archway leading to the dance floor. Song and dance set the mood as old friends reunited and new acquaintances were made. They mingled over food and drink, awaiting the next opportunity for a special moment. Here, in this magical place, our fairy tale begins...

Once upon a time, in a far off land, two lovers dance gently, his heart in her hand.
In that infinite moment, only minutes may pass pledging of a love that can't help but to last.
The night stretches on, memories they create,
They will always remember that extraordinary date.
The clock strikes twelve loudly, heard over talking and laughter.
The couple leaves quietly to party happily ever after...

AT THE STROKE OF MIDNIGHT

The Real Party Begins...

At the stroke of midnight, much to the student's relief, the formal gowns and tuxedos transformed into comfortable clothing. The festivities raged on from twelve to five in the morning. Post prom was a great alternative for students once prom came to an end, because it was a substance-free environment with an abundance of food and entertainment. The activities included the Peak Experiences' climbing wall, a mechanical bull, and the student's favorite event, sumo wrestling. The Adrenaline Rush obstacle course was a popular event despite the casualties seen on Monday morning. "Post prom is a great place to go because you know it is safe and you'll have lots of fun," said Junior Elisa Bailey. A majority of students chose to attend post prom and stay for most of the evening. One factor enticing students to stay was the desirabe prizes given away late in the evening. DINNER FOR 2...001!

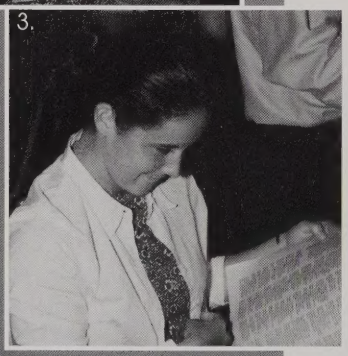
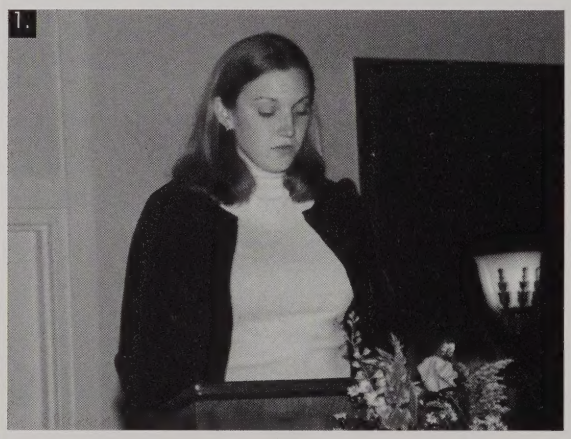
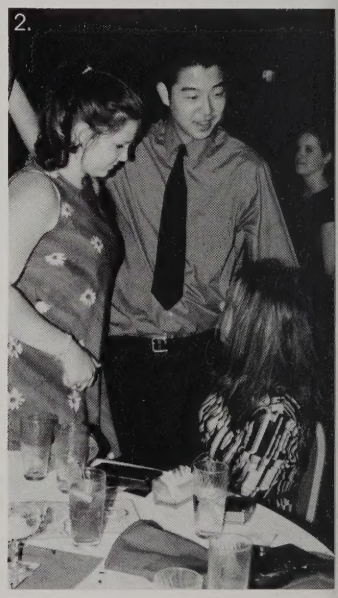
Seniors Attend Banquet

The Class of 2001 enjoyed fine food and reminisced over fond memories at the annual Senior Banquet. Held at the Holiday Inn Koger Center, the Banquet was the last formal gathering for Seniors before graduation. Each year, important traditions are recognized on this occasion. Activities included a slide show display, presentation of Senior Superlatives, and reading of Senior Wills. Some Seniors felt that the Banquet brought a sense of closure to the school year. "Seeing the Senior Class all together was a good way to end the year," Senior Kiyoung Lee said. However, som thought of the event as a tearful goodbye. "It was an upsetting time for me, seeing our four years come to a close," Senior Emily Greene said. For all present, the Banquet was remembered as a night of fun, laughter, and cherished nostalgia.

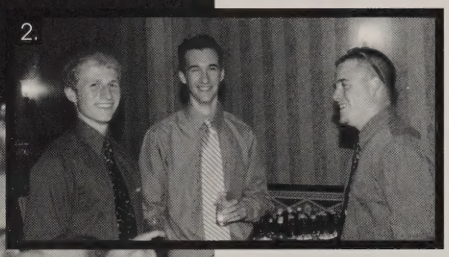


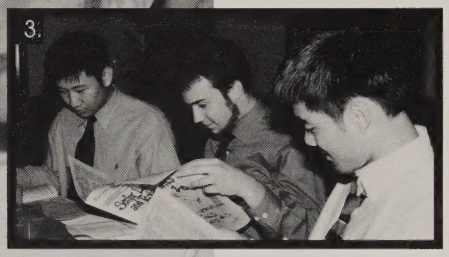
1. Chris Cottrel and Melissa Gladtsone happily enjoy dinner. 2. Seniors Shelby Black, Lauren Tassone, Nicole Toney, and Ashley Baster pose for a group picture. 3. Senior Sheila Dawes looks over Senior Wills.





1. Senior Class Historian Sara Heyl talks to her fellow classmates about their high school years. 2. Seniors Simon Kim, Dee Helms, and Amanda Emma reminisce. 3. Seniors John Salinas and Sarah Hix flip through their Senior Wills.

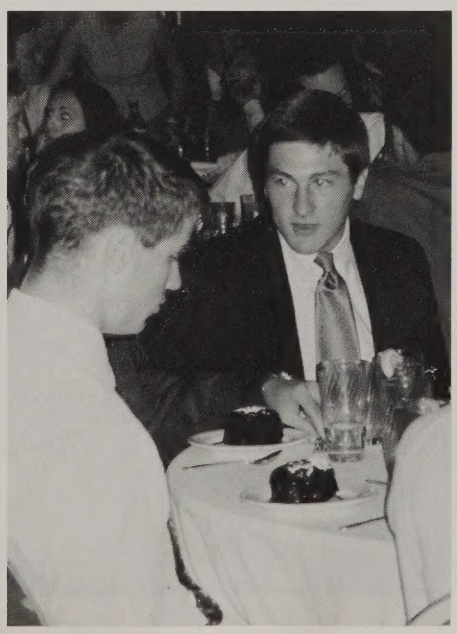




1. Senior Tom Keller makes a toast with his longtime friends. 2. Seniors Ed Altman, Andy Blatecky, and Stephen Kesler get away from the crowd to enjoy refreshments. 3. Seniors Bryan Shin, Greg Hensley, and Theo Choi are amused over the Last Wills and Testaments. 4. Senior ladies have fun during their last days of high school.

Sights Unseen

- Eight members of Girls Soccer were unable to attend, as they were busy securing their way to States
- Students had a choice of three different entrees for their meal
- The slide show could be purchased for $10
- Chicken cordon bleu was the most common dish
- Meals were included in Senior Fees at the beginning of the year
- Every Senior was included in the slide show
- 500 words were the maximum amount that could be purchased in senior wills



Senior Matt Lynch socializes with friends over dessert. "It was really fun getting together with everyone from the Senior Class and relaxing for a while

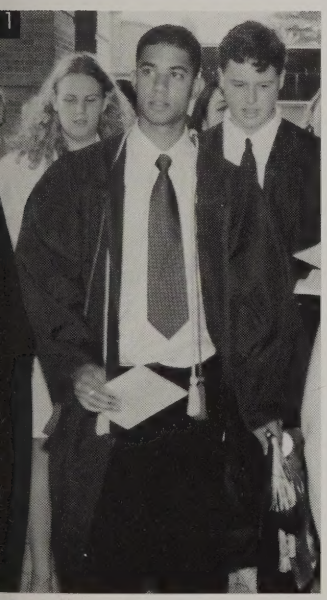
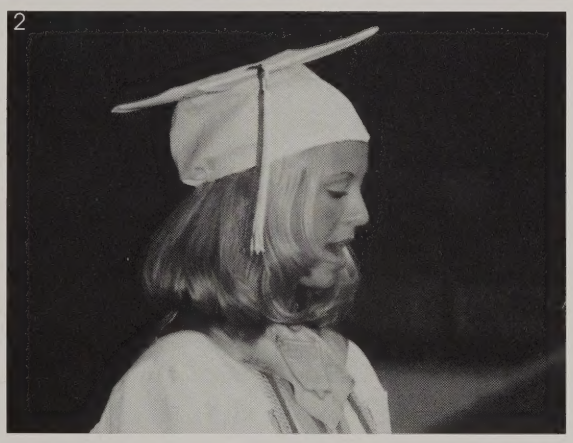
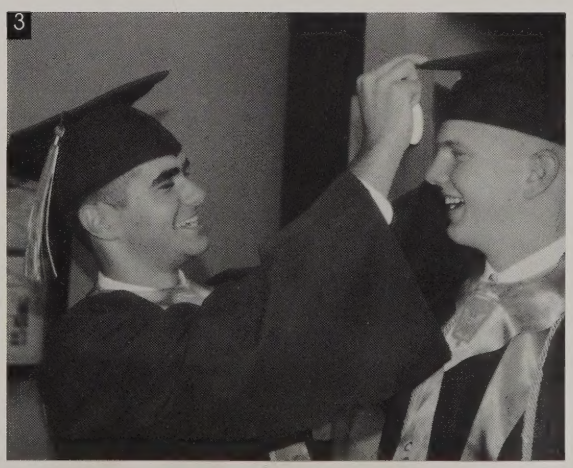
CLOSING TIME

very beginning comes from some other beginning's end

As the graduation ceremony commenced, the doors to high school officially closed r the Class of 2001. Some students proceeded anxiously, looking forward to their new portunities; others did so reluctantly, not yet ready to leave behind the familiar utine of high school. Four years of laughter, tears, joys, triumphs, and struggles had en enclosed in both the minds of the students and the halls of the school. However, nether excitement or fear penetrated students' thoughts on June 14, the Class of 2001 ade it obvious to parents, friends, administrators, and underclassmen that they ould not exit the ranks of high school without leaving a profound impression. Success not measured in wealth, was a bit of advice offered by Evan Smith in his speech, but ther in obstacles and failures one has overcome. Each day is just as important as the evious, was a message revealed by the Valedictorian, Karen Wolfe, where one must vake with the mind set to make every day matter in order to gain true happiness. The ea that the end does not mean all is over, but instead that a new beginning has arrived as the essence of a poem read by Jabarie Brown. So, as the diplomas were received, e hats thrown, and the cheers heard, the Class of 2001 marched proudly onward tering a future filled with the hopes and dreams of talented students.

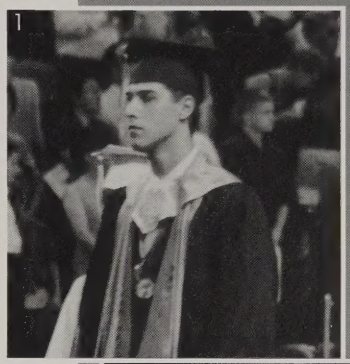


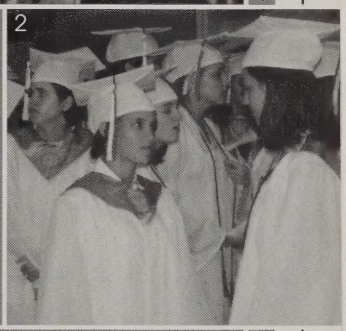


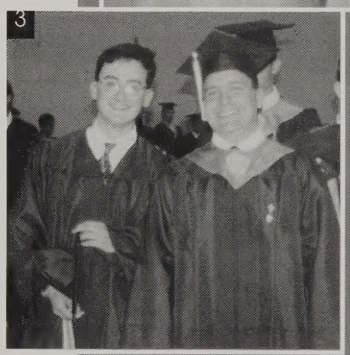


1 Barret Boyance enters the Segal Center and begins the journey to receive his diploma. 2 Salutatorian Brittany Rhoney offers words of advice to her classmates. 3 Jonathan Turfboer fixes Justin Ward's cap before the ceremony.

A Change in Direction







1 Evan Smith exits the colosseum in the recession. 2 Trisha Fisher gathers with the girls in the gym to line up for the procession. 3 Tyler Barrus and Josh Barnes reveal their excitement for their graduation through wide eyes and big smiles.

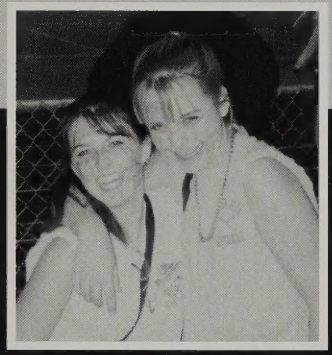
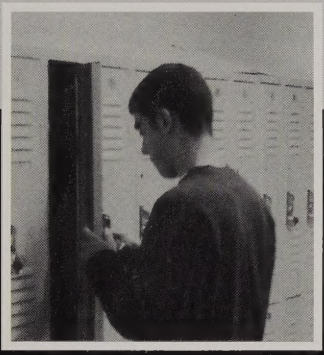
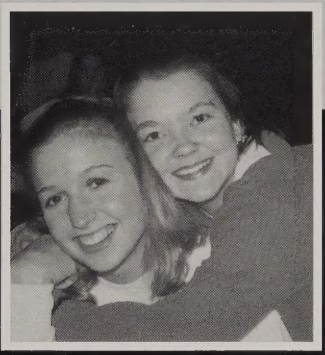
The Quest to Find Yourself and Your Friends







We all know why you are at this section, and we all know what you want to do. You want to look up your crush. You want to look up your friends. And of course, you want to find your own photo because you remember how great you looked on picture day. So go ahead -- go ahead and search for yourself, for your best friend, for that "special someone," and remember the people that stand out in your life. Find the pictures of those who shine, because in reality we are all stars.

New Coordinator Steps Up

The Math/Science High School Gets Experienced New Coordinator

When Mr. Leonard, one of the founders of the Chesterfield County Mathematics and Science gh School, left on September 1, 2000, he left big shoes to fill. Mr. Burns, the Vice-Principal om Monacan High School, and an ex-chef, resturant critic, and DJ stepped in to take over the ties of Math/Science Coordinator. After attaining his B.A. in Math and English from the niversity of Richmond, he worked in hospitals, law firms, and restaurants. Mr. Burns said he ose to focus his attention on education because he "finally stopped listening to his family and ends." Since he has been here, he has been welcomed and loved by all. "He has an infectious ugh from his gut," said guidance counselor Mrs. Rebecca Copenhaver. Junior Allison Mathews d, "If you have a question, it doesn't have to be about school; he's ally receptive to it. Everyone had really high expectations, and so far has lived up to them."

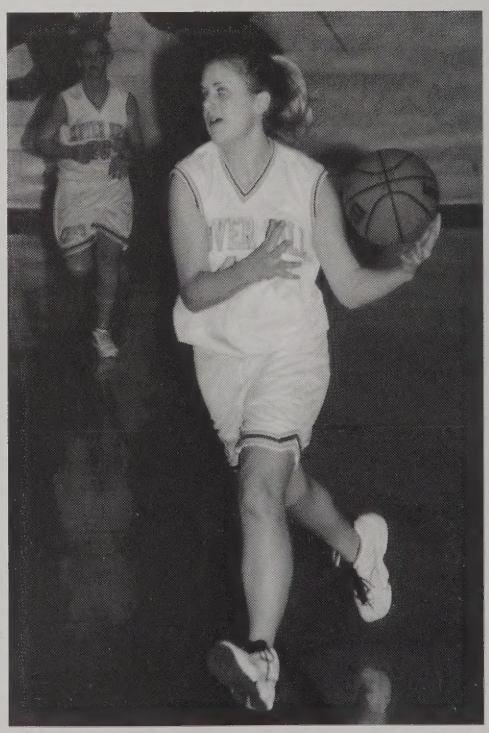
Beginning the Climb

Freshmen Advance to the Hill

As the freshmen arrived at their new school, many changes awaited them. As the year progressed, the picked up on quite a few differences which they will have to get adjusted to for the next four years. The top ten changes between middle school and high school were...

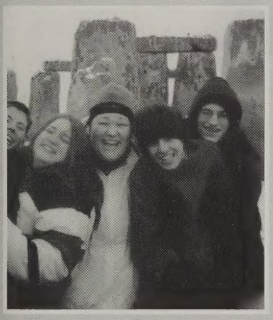
10. School starts at an earlier time
9. Cafeteria food actually tastes good
8. There are more clubs to join
7. There is more time in between classes
6. Sports teams are more competitive
5. There is more freedom
4. There is an extra day to do homework
3. School dances are more formal as well as more expensive
2. Two words: Pep rallies!
1. The chicken fritters don't bounce



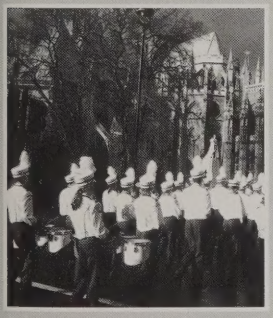
Winter Londonland

The Music Ensembles Spend Winter Holiday in England

Senior Kate Rhodes and Junior Meghan Bernier show off their socks on the plane. "The trip was a great chance to show our talent and spend time with friends," Bernier said.



Some of the musicians pause for a picture while visiting Stonehenge. "I never realized how big the rocks were until I was beside them," Junior Heather Menster said.



The band marches down the street during the New Year's Day Parade. "It was a lot of fun to be a part of something that was so big," Senior Matt Lynch said.

While most people were enjoying their winter break at home or at a relative's house, the marching band, orchestra, and chorus groups were enjoying their stay in London, England. After a six and a half hour flight, the musicians performed for the Lord Lieutenant's Reception. Throughout the week, they toured London and surrounding areas, visiting sights such as Stonehenge, the famous Rock Circle, the ancient City of Bath, and the Tower of London where the crown jewels are kept. They gathered together for the "Music for London" concert at Westminster Central Hall to show their talent. However, the grand finale for the week was the New Year's Day Parade. The band marched while the chorus and orchestra members held Garfield balloons. Their participation received publicity from the news in the Richmond area , as there were only thirty-five schools who attended this extravagant event. It was definitely a week to remember for this talented group of musicians. "Although we had to participate in a school function during our winter break, it was worth it. It was an experience that none of us will ever forget," Senior Evan Smith said.

3.

1. The drummers take a break after practicing and get ready to perform in the parade. "As cold as it was during the parade, the drummers' hands were never cold because we were always moving," Sophomore Blaire Morgan said. 2. The musicians were able to see the famous Big Ben during their London vacation. "I've always seen Big Ben on television, but it's so much better when you're standing right in front of it and you can see the amazing architecture," Senior Matt Maclauchlan said. 3. They also visited Windsor Castle where the Queen of England lives. "It felt like such an honor to be there near such powerful rulers," Senior Tyler McCall said.

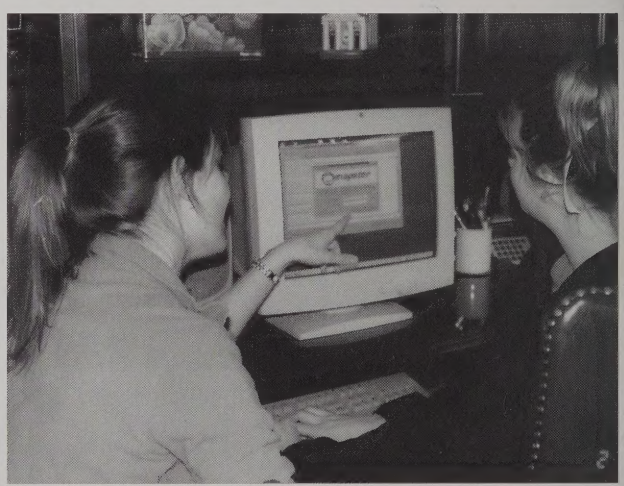
Technology Aids in the Development of the American Industry

Back to the Future

Ever since the invention of the personal computer, companies have created advanced technological equipment to aid in the development of the American industry. The arrival of CD burners, Napster, MP3s, DVDs, digital cable, and cable modems contributed to this new development. "Technology helps you perform applications that will greater expand your capabilities in a future business atmosphere," said Junior Will Hezlep. The creation of Napster opened new opportunities for the consumer to download music free, which led to protests from record companies. Some artists took action against Napster, suing the company for illegally marketing their products. "Napster is a good way for musicians to put their music out on the market," said Senior Chris Parrish. Despite the controversies over the progresses in technology, people have familiarized themselves with the advancements that recently came into existence.

Computers hold the capability for the technology market to manufacture software to provide for the consumer. The popularity of computers have rapidly increased.



Logging onto Napster, Juniors Jessica Smith and Allison Mathews wait for the connection to download the latest song. "Napster is a great way to get free music at the click of a button," said Smith.

Sophomore Starr Walker focuses attentively on her lesson. She has gained years of knowledge in the span of two semesters. "I definitely know more words now than I would if I was in French 5," said Walker.

Sophomores Sarah Jessee, Cammy Koch, and Kristine Carney review their notes in History. "I've learned a lot of vocabulary, so it widens the variety of words I can use," Carney said.

Study Abroad in French!

Clover Hill Welcomes A New Addition in the French Immersion Specialty Center

In its inaugural year, the French Immersion Specialty Center offered interested students a chance to explore the language nd culture of France in a way that would not have been possible in an ordinary classroom setting. The program was available o underclassmen who met the strict application criteria. These students communicated and were instructed in French for at east half of their day. Freshmen took Immersion I and French P.E. 9. The Sophomore schedule included an Immersion class nd History of the World. Subject matter of such classes, as well as the program itself, was planned well in advance. "We ad a committee of teachers, administrators, and businessmen who met for a full year before the program began. They lanned the curriculum, student selection, staffing, and special needs," Program Coordinator Eleanor Tuck said. The effectiveess of the project has been remarkable. By hearing so much spoken French in a short period of ime, students learned to expand their comprehension skills. "I see remendous growth in these students," Tuck said. Goals for the future all for bringing in a French ath course and a study of French lm and humanities. All involved ope to continue the program's uccessful progress.

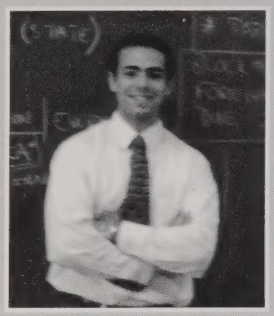
Donkeys And Elephants



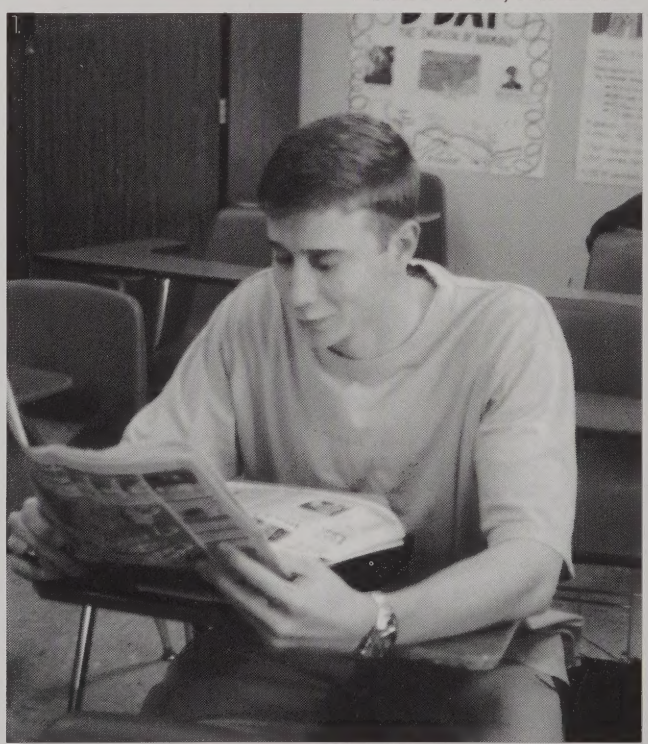
Senior Ross McDonald was very adament about in his preference for George Bush. As a member of the working class he supported the possibility of a tax cut.

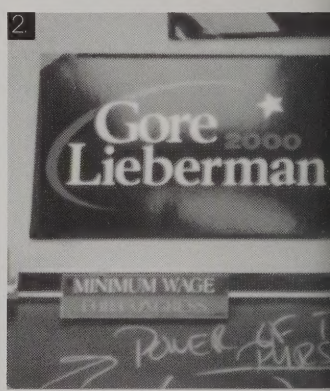
Senior Amy Jackson, during a discussion on the election, stated that if she had been able to vote, she would have gone Democratic.

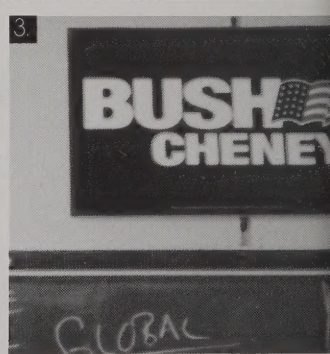
Senior Melissia Larkin searched for information on the candidates after school.

The 2000 election has been called the most controversal election in history. The two primary canidates were Republican George W. Bush with running mate Dick Cheney, and Democrat Albert Gore with running mate Joseph Lieberman. Americans cast their votes on November 7, 2000, but the votes of Flordia were so close that Al Gore demanded a recount. Flordia had become the state that would determine the next president.

For well over a month the U.S. was in turmoil. Rules for the recount were made concerning the "chads." A chad that would not have been counted in a normal election was examined by hand and counted if it was "dimpled" or "hanging." People blamed the voting machines for tampering with ballots as well. After the two month long controversial recount, Flordia certified its electoral votes. George Bush, following in his father's footsteps, became the President elect. Although Bush won the presidency, Vice President Al Gore won the popular vote. After the election, he accepted a position teaching at the Columbia University Graduate School. On January 20, 2001, George W. Bush was sworn in and offically became the forty-third president of the United States of America.







1. Senior Eric Major Like many other people kept up on the election by reading the newspaper like many other Americans. 2. and 3. Teachers display election signs in their classrooms in order to inform the students about the candidates.

All Grown Up

New Shopping Center Provides Convenience for Surrounding Area

With the opening of a new shopping center comes many job opportunities, convenience, and growth in the surrounding area. The new Commonwealth Centre was no exception. Many students took advantage of the recent development and became part-time employees at Commonwealth 20 movie theater, Target, and Kohl's. "Kohl's was a great place to work because they were very flexible with my busy schedule," said Senior Cori Fisher. The center's location provided nearby residents with a "one-stop " shopping center that not only had retail stores , but also boasted a deluxe movie theater with entertainment for everyone. Commonwealth 20's big screen theaters and comfortable stadium-seating brought people to the shopping center to experience the luxury for themselves. As it continues to grow, the Commonwealth Centre proves to be an excellent addition to the area 's shopping.

A large sign proves that Phase II will be beginning construction soon. "It's finally nice to have something to do that's not a million miles away,"said Senior Meredith Rizzo.

Junior Kevin McGrath serves refreshments to customers before their movies. "It's a tough job, but somebody's gotta do it," said McGrath. Commonwealth 20 theater is especially popular with teenagers, since they receive a student discount on their movie tickets.

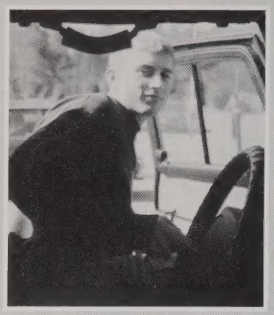
Behind the Wheel

Students Debate th Newly Establishe Parking Policy



"The new policy has improved the parking situation in the pit, but I can understand why Juniors would be upset by the change," said Senior Travis French.

Three new passes were issued. The Seniors' pass remained white while the Juniors' passes were green for those driving on even days and orange for those driving on odd days.

"It's faster and easier to get out of the parking lot now, whether you are parked in the pit or in a Senior Spot," Senior Hallie Yeager said.

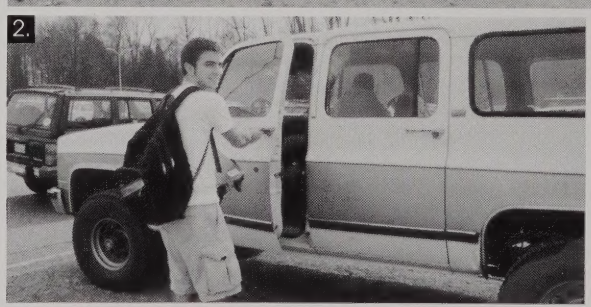
The new parking policy was met with avid controversy. The initial purpose of the program was to improve traffic conditions in the parking lot and to provide more students with the opportunity to drive to and from school. Seniors were still permitted to drive every day and the Senior parking spaces were extended vertically rather than horizontally.

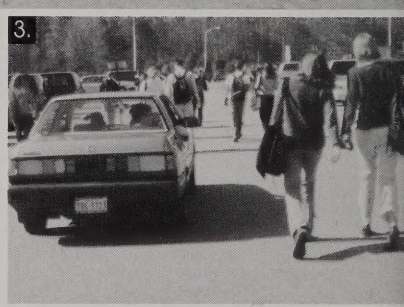
Consequently, Juniors were issued parking passes for either even or odd days and were forced to park farther away from the school, even if they arrived early before many of the Seniors. Therefore, half of the Junior class drove one day while the remainder drove the next.

Some Juniors found this as an inconvenenience, as every other day they were required to find a ride to and from school.

However, a positive achievement of the recent changes could be seen in the parking lot shortly after 1:45 PM, when studer hurried to their cars to lea school in the afternoon. T traffic flowed rapidly a smoothly and the new parki situation appeared to benificial to both students a faculty.

Although the new parki system brought such a heat debate, it was a working sol tion to the increase in t school's driving population





1. Junior Robin Accetta gets ready to leave school in the afternoon. "It's a pain to have to find a ride on odd days, especially when I have to work after school," Accetta said. 2. Opening his car door, Junior Cliff Sowers prepares to take his girlfriend home. "It's easier for me to deal with the change because my girlfriend and I just bought passes for different days," Sowers said. Many Juniors paired up this year to ensure they had a ride to and from school. 3. Students hurry to their cars after the bell, anxious to leave school. There was less trafic in the lot following the implementation of the new policy.

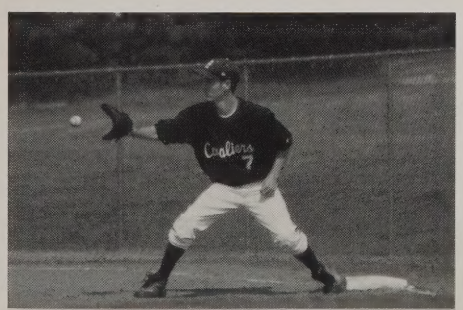
While on the way to Prom this year, I was in the limo nd I was thirsty, so I got a drink out of the refrigerator. Vhen I picked it up, I noticed the can had that hard feel o it, like it was going to explode. "I'm not going to open is, it's gonna explode," I said. I then gave the bottle to ie person next to me and she said, "You idiot, the bottle made out of glass!"~Brian Lipes ★★

One time I was at Maymont Park with some friends. We ad walked a great distance and were obviously quite red. While we were walking up a steep hill, I decided o run, so I could get up the hill before my friends and o I could get the climb over. Once I reached level land, was so elated about my dominating quest, I started to un towards a gazebo swinging my arms in circles. Little id I know that there was a young couple in the gazebo aking out. Naturally, I ran right up to them, ruined ieir special moment (I scared them away), and brought ny friends to tears with laughter. At least we all got to t down under the gazebo!"~David Pinsky ★★★

Last year, we were playing Huguenot during baseball eason, and I was playing first base. It was the last inning nd there were two outs...one more to go! The ball was it towards me, and it was a fly ball--or so I thought. I ught it and ran in like it was the third out. Everyone elled my name, telling me to get back on the field. The atter hit a one-hopper and I thought it was a pop y!"~Mitchell Hauser ★★★



"In AP Calculus class this year, I was writing down my homework that was on the board. Suddenly, I had a question. "Mr. Scott, it says to page 329, A-11. What does that mean?" The whole class bursted out laughing. "I thought you were smart Eric. It's page 329 all!" my friend said."~Eric Major ★★

"At AAU basketball practice last year, we were all sitting on the bleachers preparing for practice. Both of my male coaches were sitting beside me when I stood up to remove my warm-up pants. They were tear-away pants so I pulled them off quickly...to find out that I had no shorts on. I was standing in my underwear."~Chrissy Bowen ★★★★

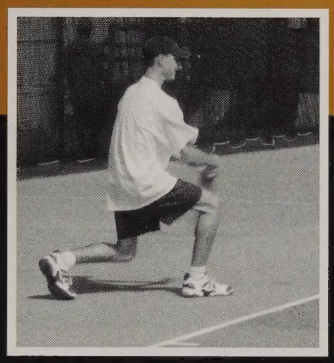
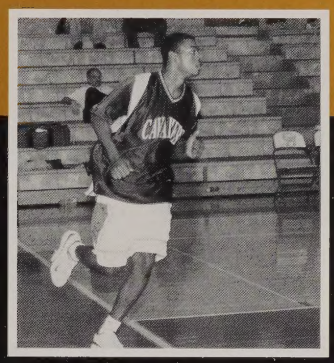
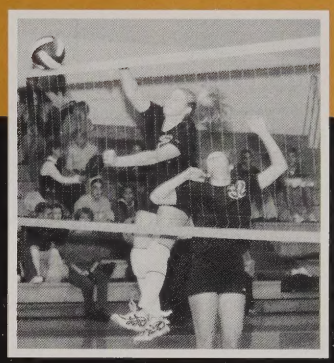
Shooting Stars

Students Focus on Athletic Achievement







Although many individuals are honored for their academic excellence, other stars can be found enhancing their athletic performance. Teammates become friends during seasons, and the special bonds that are formed are treasured forever. Aspects of being an athlete include the neverending practices, triumphant goals, disappointed tears, and the celebrations of a victory. No matter the sport, these students shine through their determination, perseverance, and love of the game.

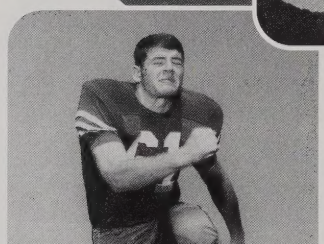
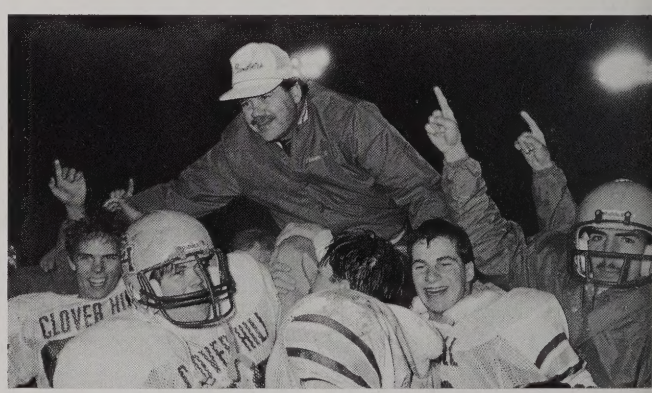
End of an Era

Coach Salmon's Regime Comes to an End



Tons of fans came out each Friday night during the fall to watch th Varsity football team under the leadership of Head Coach Ted Salmo Football had been a vital part of Coach Salmon's life since he starte playing in 1958. After graduating from Meadowbrook High School 1968, Salmon went on to play football as a defensive lineman for Ea Carolina University. In 1976, he officially became a head footba coach at this school and has remained on the coaching staff ever sinc During his time on the sidelines, Salmon's efforts have produce twelve All-State players, five district championships, and four titles the Richmond Touchdown Club's Coach of the Year. The 2000 seaso marked Salmon's final year coaching, and in his honor the footba staduim offically became the Ted Salmon Stadium on October 2 During his career, he earned 151 victories-- the most wins by any coa in Chesterfield County. Although he is leaving the field, Coach Salmo does not plan on deserting his team any time in the future. "I'm su I'll see all the games next year," Salmon said.

The new sign displaying the name of the football staduim is displayed for the first time. "Coach Salmon deserves this honor because of his extreme dedication to the sport," Junior Robby Tucker said. Hopefully the sign will bring luck to the football team during future games.



After an excited win, Coach Salmon's players lift him on the shoulders in excitement. "While winning is not the most impo tant thing about football, it still is a great feeling," Coac Salmon said. From his skillful coaching, the football team h had that same great feeling many times throughout the yea

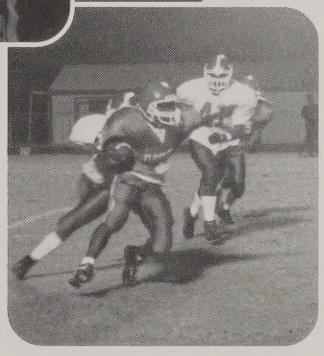
Underclassmen Move Up a Level



Many football players had previous experience from associaon teams before coming to the Hill. "As they rise in stature, ey find that the speed, strength, and size of the other teams creases. Everyone had to adjust to a new routine, new rminology, and new roles," Head Coach Mike Stefanko said.
actices demanded a great deal of running and much stamina.
nlike association teams, players became more driven and mpetitive. Newcomers on both teams realized that they could ot rely on their past repuations or popularity. They were dged solely on the basis of athletic contribution. "I found high hool football to be much harder, requiring more discipline d endurance," Freshman Patrick Nebera said. This physical d mental maturity was an important factor in the more serious mpetitions. Similarly, the JV players needed to draw from perience in order to reach peak effeciency. Greater responsilities were expected of them as a result of their exposure to the me.

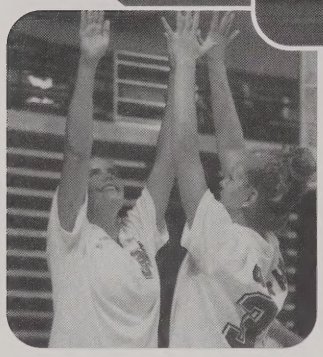
Court Justice

Teams Overcome Obstacles and Injury



The JV and Varsity teams both overcame challenges to make th successes that much sweeter. The JV team had only three returni players and had to overcome inexperience and unfamiliarity w new teammates. "Despite having so many new players, we learned to work together," Sophomore Kristen Ruch said about t JV team. Also, Varsity's number one outside hitter, Megan Roh was injured, which put her out for the season. Junior Jessica Herm had to step up to fill the role. Junior Lauren Nofzinger moved to t setter position in order for Senior Lindi Sheppard to also become outside hitter. The team adapted to all of these changes with limit time. The girls learned how to pull their team back together a remain strong. Both teams refused to give up and ended the seas with successful records.

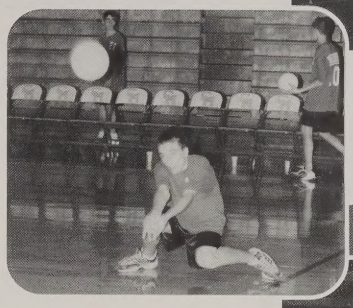
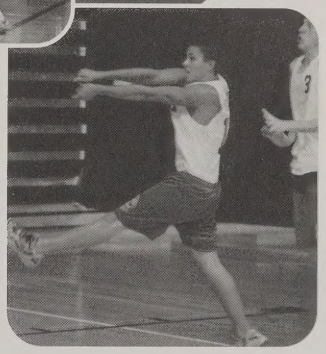
Seniors Gain Responsibility





Senior volleyball players found that they had to take a leadership nitiative this year. "As a captain I have the responsibility to set an xample for my fellow teammates and keep the intensity of practices p," said Senior Andy Blactecky. Since Men's Volleyball coach Steve liasek was busy with his son, Jackson, and newborn daughter, Anna rass, the seniors had to step up and act as a second coach. Much of the esponsibility and leadership was put on the Senior Co-Captains Andy lactecky and Mike Dennis. The team's main focus this year was to be ccountable. This idea corresponded with their word of the year: esponsibility. "Every person on the team had a responsibility, so when ve all fulfill our roles, we come together as a great team," said Junior teven Coggins. Through the seniors' responsibility and Coach Eliasek, ne team ended with a 17 and 5 record, winning Districts and making to the Regional Tournament.

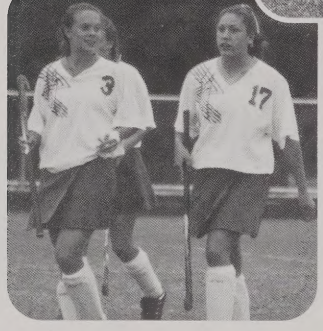
Stick Tricks

Young Teams Prove to be Successful



Even though the Varsity Field Hockey team had only three returning seniors, the team prevailed against many rivalries and even advanced to the semi-final bracket of the Regional Tournament. "Although we only had a few returning players on Varsity, our team has developed into a great group of athletes," Senior Kim Cox said. When approached with the prospect of next year's possibilities, the girls felt that the team had room to grow and improve their skills. "I believe that we will grow to learn each other's strengths and weaknesses," said Junior Sarah Windham. The JV team, consisting of many freshmen and even some eighth graders, did an outstanding job during their season. "Having such a young team is good because it will allow us time to improve as a group," said Sophomore Lauren Carpenter.

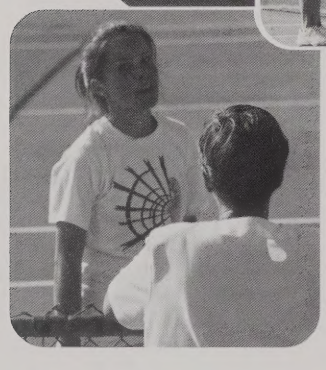
Women's Tennis Exceeds Expectations



Beginning the season with inspirations that were not as high a last year, the Women's Tennis team worked hard and dedicate their free time to practicing. Junior Jan Pinkston said, "The tea did better than we expected." Sophomore Erin Modena agree the season was difficult. "It was a lot harder playing the othe schools' top players because I moved up to the number on position," Modena said.

Making third place in the District was an accomplishment. Onl two of the girls, Senior Cori Fisher and Sophomore Erin Modena made it to Regionals. "I thought we did really good for having younger team. Even though we were inexperienced, we sti managed third in the District," Fisher said.

This year, the Seniors led the younger players to overcome thes expectations. Being one of the younger members of the team Margaret Nardella said, "The seniors have taught me so much an I now have more experience to help the upcoming members o next year's team."

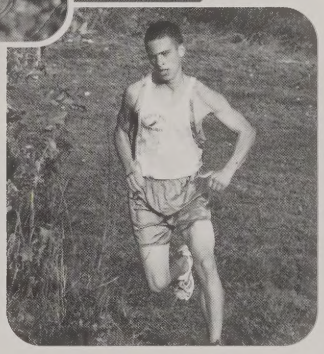
Splitting Teams Proves Beneficial



This year introduced changes for Men's and Women's Cross Country. Seniors came and went, races were won and lost, and something new was brought to the team. For the first time, they split into separate Men's and Women's groups. Coaches Chris Averill and Gail Kline took over the responsibilities and were able to provide individual attention to the strengths and weaknesses of each team. "It enabled us to focus better on the individual students, since there were so many on the team," said Coach Averill. Both coaches saw this new change as a positive aspect. "Splitting into two teams was beneficial to the cross country program," said Coach Kline. This new change brought even better results than they had expected.

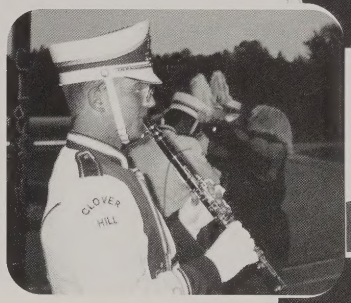
Making the Band

Dedication to Excel



Determination, dedication, and devotion were words the arching Band and Color Guard members knew all too well. ide from the sudden gusts of wind and chilling temperatures, e skill involved in creating this symphonic unit separated them om the rest. Practicing no less than six hours a week, as well as e stress of each folly, miscue, or skipped beat, pushed this elite ass of performers to the edge. Painstaking hours on their feet hile playing songs such as "Land of a Thousand Dances," Rocky," and "Na Na, Hey Hey, Goodbye," and twirling flags in way so that the flags did not wrap around their poles, called for ore than an average effort. Each maneuver and note took time perfect and synchronize, so the band could achieve the recog- tion it deserved. "A lot of people do not realize how hard it is be able to play and march at the same time. It takes a lot of tellect and practice," Senior Paul Brown said. Those Friday ghts paid off, however, with perfect productions and a trip to ondon in January.

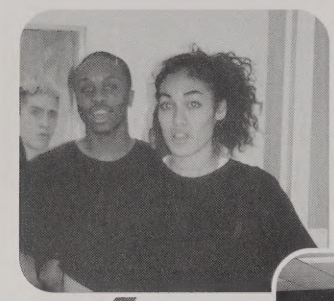
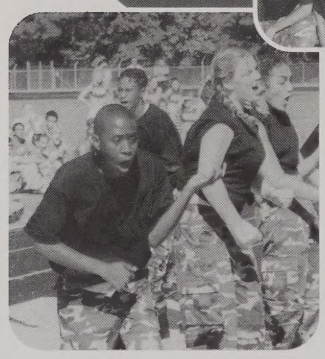
Step It Up

Step Team Shows Diversity





Since last year's step team tryouts, Chaos has grown a grea deal. Formed in 1997, many of Chaos' Seniors have now left th team. New members have taken on the responsibilites of the ste team, and the group has become more diverse. "Dedication, love for stepping, and constant teamwork is vitally important, Senior Kirstie Bullock said. The role the step team played in th school's atmosphere attracted the new members and gave them chance to be in the spotlight. "You have to be well coordinated focused, and have the attidude to be a great stepper," Sophomor Ashley Bacon-Ward said. Chaos performed at various events suc as pep rallies, basketball games, and step competitions. Led b Senior Jabarie Brown, the team praticed three times a week t create a unified team.

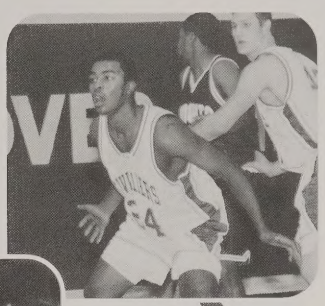
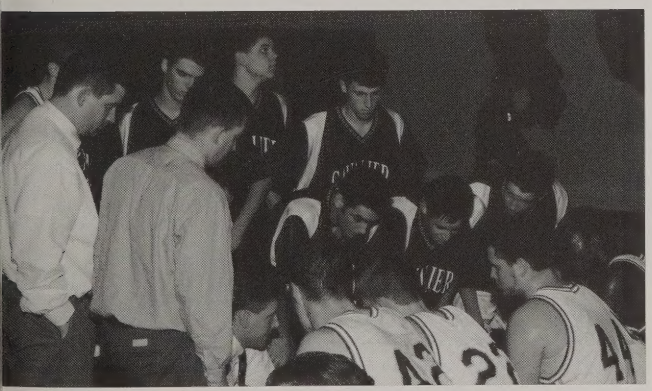
A Team Faces Changes



The 2000-2001 season for the Varsity Men's Basketball team was a me of change. The new coach, Randell Edwards, wanted the challenge building a successful AAA program and came here because he lieved the school had the resources to do that. With a fresh start, oach Edwards brought a more disciplined philosophy to the Cavalier me. "The expectations of the team this year were not based on inning and losing," Coach Edwards said. Most of the season was ent on developing fundamental skills needed for the coach's system. he players in our program have adapted very well. We have veloped a very good work ethic, and our players have excellent titudes. They still have much to learn, but I strongly believe that this oup of players is setting a good foundation from which the program ill achieve success in the near future," Coach Edwards said. Although e season was filled with changes, the team continued to improve their ills while adapting to a new coaching technique.



uring a time-out, the Cavaliers gather around Coach dwards for a talk. "This coach plays to win, not to please ne crowd," said Senior Todd Crown. Edwards both sup- orted and disciplined the team.

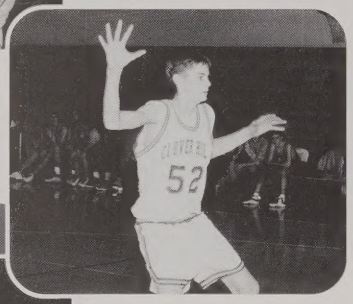
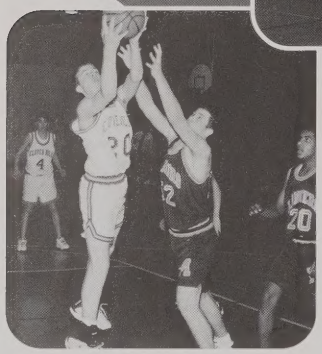
Players Achieve Greater Prestige





Advancement in team sports tends to begin at the Freshman leve then move up to J.V., and end at Varsity. However, it is possible to lea ahead to another level before the end of a season. The J.V. an Freshman basketball teams exemplified this quality. Some Freshme started out on the J.V. team, while other Freshmen players we promoted to the team midseason. Likewise, J.V. players climbed th ranks to achieve Varsity status. For example, halfway through th season this year, Freshman Bernard Irby and Sophomores Will Hix an Cory McDaniel were pulled up from the J.V. Basketball team to th Varsity squad. "I never gave up in practice. In the end, I was move up to varsity and all my hard work paid off," Irby said. His succe demonstrated the positive results that can come with a strong wo ethic. The accomplishments of these players set an example for oth underclassmen to follow.

Teammates Form Friendships

The Womens J.V. and Varsity basketball players became friends through many years of teamwork. Most of the girls played together previously on Association, AAU, and middle school teams. Due to the bonds that formed between them, the girls were more successful this year than in past years. At every game the teams performed a catchy stomp as the starters were announced. Fans witnessed the close bond of the girls when they showed silent spirit from the bench during foul shots. It was not unusual to see pats on the shoulder or even hugs as players came on and off the court. Grueling practices and discipline during the season encouraged teammates to support each other. "Encouragement and cheering from the team truly helps me in the middle of a tough game," Junior Allison Usry said. Another characteristic found on both the J.V. and Varsity teams was great sportsmanship. The bond between all of the girls was stronger than any other team's defense.

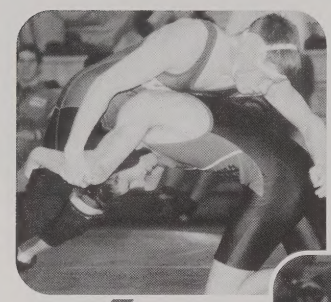
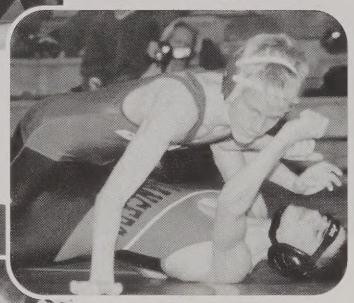
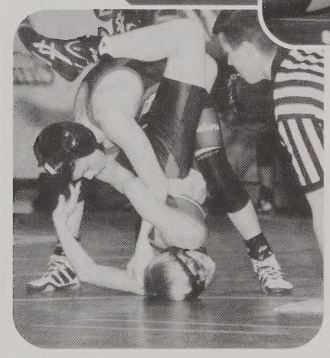
Individual Successes Result in Team Wins







In wrestling, individual wins were the key to the team's overa performance. "If I focus on winning my match, then, in the long ru the team will be successful," said Junior Eric Colpo. The wrestle respected each other's effort, and they realized that each member w important to the team's success. "As the first one to wrestle at eve match, I see my job as not only to win, but to get the crowd and the tea pumped up," said Freshman Casey Smith. Even though wrestling w considered to be an individual sport, the wrestlers realized the impo tance of being supportive for the team's sake. "There is a tea championship and an individual championship; in order for a team win, a person must not get pinned. Everyone can support each oth by not getting pinned," said Coach Stefanko. Due to the team's suppo for one another, they ended the season with a winning record of 16-3.

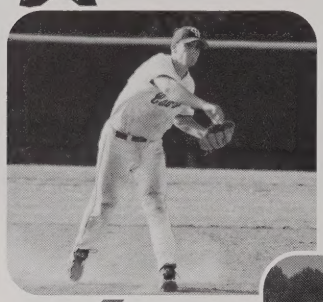
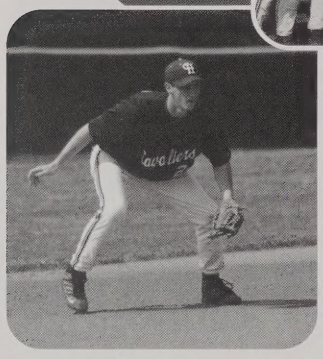
Baseball Team Strives for Triumphs





The men's Baseball team began their season by setting goals th hoped to achieve. One of their major accomplishments was adding Coach Tim Lowery's victorious record. The Varsity team won a doubl header at Massaponax and completed the school's two-hundredth w under Coach Lowery's leadership. "Despite the fact that it was o team that gained the two-hundredth win, I feel that we owe it to Coa Lowery's past teams," Junior Herman Demmink said. Coach Lowe responded to this incredible feat with dignity and modesty. "I was gl that my youngest son was at the game to see the team win," Coa Lowery said. In addition, the Junior Varsity team was successful ev though many of the players were young. The team was compos mainly of eighth and ninth graders, paving the way to future succe The team proved they could handle the challenge of inexperience a ended the season with an impressive record.

New Kids Come Up Swinging

From the first day of softball practice, it was obvious that a great ıange had occurred within the team. The roster only consisted of ur returning Seniors, a much smaller number than in the past. hile there were other players who had played on Varsity before, the ımber of novices on Varsity and Junior Varsity had increased. The ew players brought with them new strategies that Coach Treisler pped would prove successful during the season. They also brought risma and spirit to the team. "Having such a fresh team really forced s to work harder on building up our teamwork," Junior Brittany kipper said. Along with the new players came talent that helped to ld some diversity to the way the team played. The young team will low time for the players to create bonds and achieve great success the future.

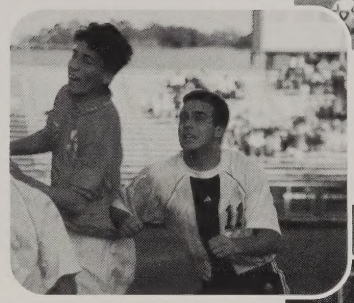
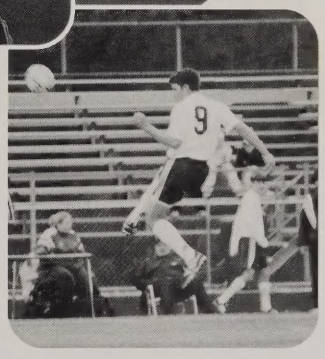
Men's Soccer is Older and Wiser





The Men's J.V. and Varsity soccer players found that their older teammates were an advantage in this year's season. Returning from an unsucessful season the previous year, the players dominated their opponents in a record breaking season. Varsity was led by Senior Captains Travis French, Andy Krukiel, and Junior Justin Ayotte. J.V was led by Sophomore Chris Tucker and Freshman Kevin McFadden. In past years, select players participated in every game, but due to the amazing amount of talent on the teams, coaches had difficulty alloting players the amount of time on the field that they deserved. "Their skill and dedication, combined with thier power in the classroom, have assured their repect from the school and community. They are a talented group that I am extremely proud of," Coach Anderson said. Both men's teams finished the year with an amazing record. Varsity succeded winning the district tournament. As the season came to a close, other district athletes realized that our men's soccer teams were a force to be reckoned with.

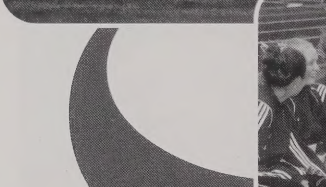
Team's Numbers Prove Beneficial



New coaches for both teams have brought many changes to women soccer. Ms. Shelly Herzing accepted the role as Varsity Coach, and M Erwin LeCrom received the position of the Junior Varsity Coach. A ne advantage was brought to Varsity when the roster was increased fro sixteen players to twenty-one players. "It's nice to have subs for eve position now, and during practice we can have full team scrimmages Senior Hallie Yeager said. Junior Varsity also experienced a change team structure. The team was made up of mostly Freshmen, unlike t previous year when the number of Freshman players and Sophomo players was more even. "I was a little nervous at first, but since a l of the Freshmen have played on the same team they know how to pl well together. It was actually to our advantage," Sophomore Kir McDonough said. Despite changes on Junior Varsity and Varsity, bo teams experienced a rewarding season. The Varsity team had one their most successful seasons yet, going on to win both the district a regional tournaments, advancing them to state-level competition.

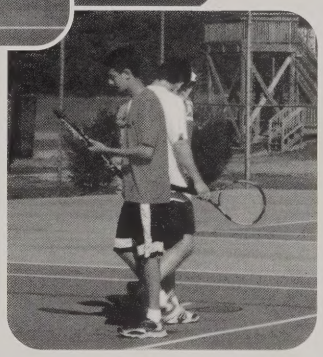
Competitive Spirits Dominate the Court



Placement on the tennis team did not guarantee members playing ne; players had to earn a position in the top six in order to compete an upcoming match. "Our top five players have the same talent, so eryone else competes for the sixth place," Junior Chris Grinnell said. hen the season began, the team was split into two groups. The first oup contained the returning six players from the previous year, along th the outstanding new players. The second group was made up of e remaining players. The group with the returning top six played a und-robin and the top player from the second group then became the mber six player. In order for a new player to enter the top six, they d to challenge a player already in the top six. The number six spot is ually challenged the most. During a challenge, the challenger needed beat their opponent twice in order to take their spot. The competi-n for playing time resulted in competitive players which caused the m's season to be successful. At the Dominion District Tournament, tt Winheim was the singles runner-up and Chris Grinnell and CJ innell were the doubles runner-up.

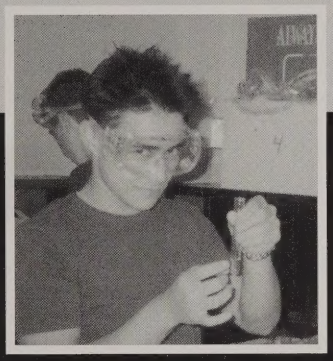
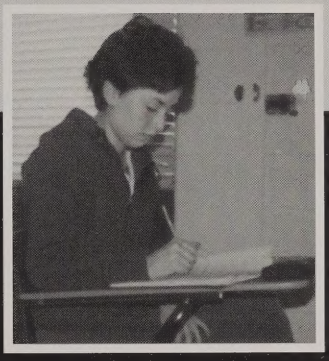
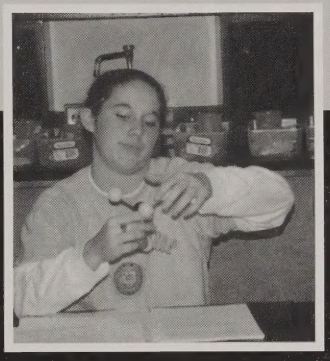
Shining Stars

Students Put Focus Towards Academic Goals

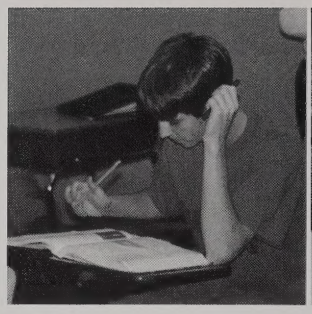


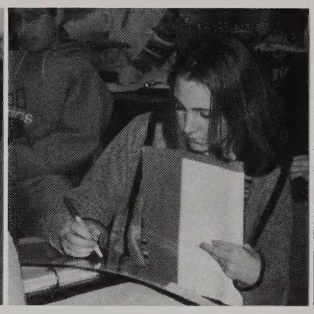


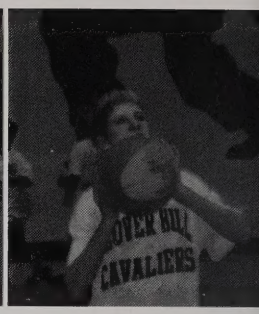


Success is often achieved by recognizing goals and then working to achieve them. Students themselves did this and were able to identify and acheive their aspirations. While Freshman strived to make a good first impression, Sophomores and Juniors wanted to establish good grades. Finally, Seniors just hoped to make it through their final year. All students gained motivation to make it through their academic struggles, so that they could shine by realizing their goals.

New Kids on the Hill







A Day in the Life of a Freshman

Going from "top dog" to "small fish" brought many changes for the Class of 2004. Along with a new school came changes in schedules, people, and class options. Block scheduling was one change to which Freshmen had to adjust. In middle school, students had seven classes a day for 50 minutes each; however, in high school they have first period for 45 minutes every day and three blocks for an hour and a half. "Block scheduling takes the pressure off having seven tests a day," said Freshman Ashish Sethi. Last year in middle school students could choose only one of five electives, while now they are offered seventeen classes in the areas of art, music, and drama. There are also many more sports offered in high school, with ten sports instead of five. The change in scenery gave the Freshman body a chance to start over.

Freshmen board the bus after school. Because of age, Freshmen were not able to drive themselves to school and were forced to rely on the "cheesewagon."

Freshman Brianne Collins gathers books from her locker in between classes. "I use two book bags to keep everything organized," Collins said. Block scheduling is a new adjustment for freshmen.

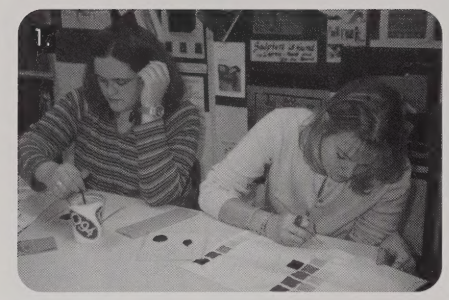
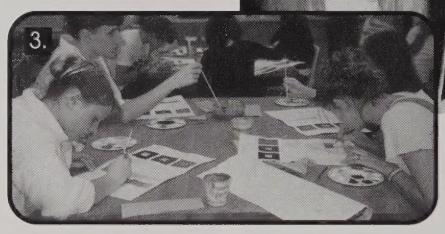
Freshmen Collin Santorine and Ashley Blankenship walk in as part of the 2000 Homecoming Court. "I was very excited about being a Freshman Homecoming Prince and it was a good experience for my first year in high school," Blankenship said.



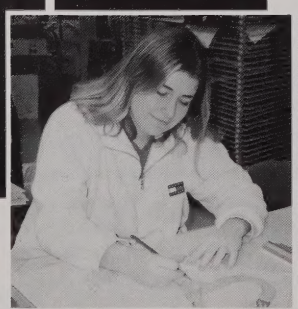


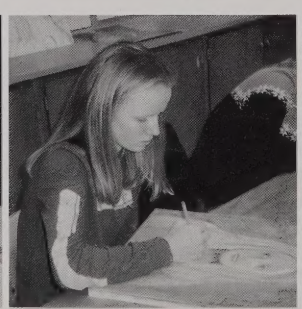
1. Sophomores Jessica Dodt and Jessica Gaulin paint their color schemes. 2. Mrs. Conroy instructs Tori Schrey on her art project. 3. Students work together for encouragement.

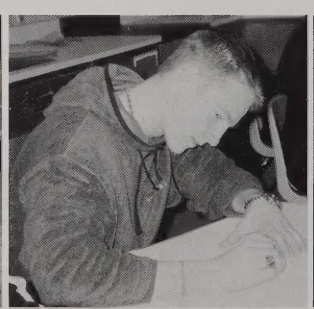
A LA ART

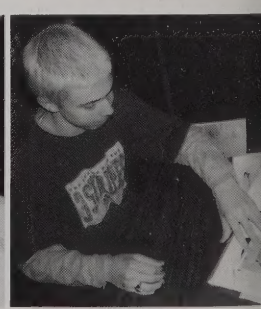
Art Brings a Creative Release

What could be more fun than a class that requires hands-on learning through self expression? Art, Photography, Crafts, and Computer Graphics allowed students to take a break from the stressful core classes and demonstrate their artistic abilities. "I like art because it is a relief throughout the day and draws me away from the stress," Sophomore Kristine Carney said. Unlike the drone of everyday core classes, art classes are designed to illustrate a person's talents rather than academic achievements. "I thought it would be enjoyable; now I want to do something similar to this in college," Senior Jill Miles said. Students enjoyed such liberties as using the pottery kiln, creating graphic landscapes in programs such as Bryce and Painter 5.0, and developing thier own film in the darkroom.





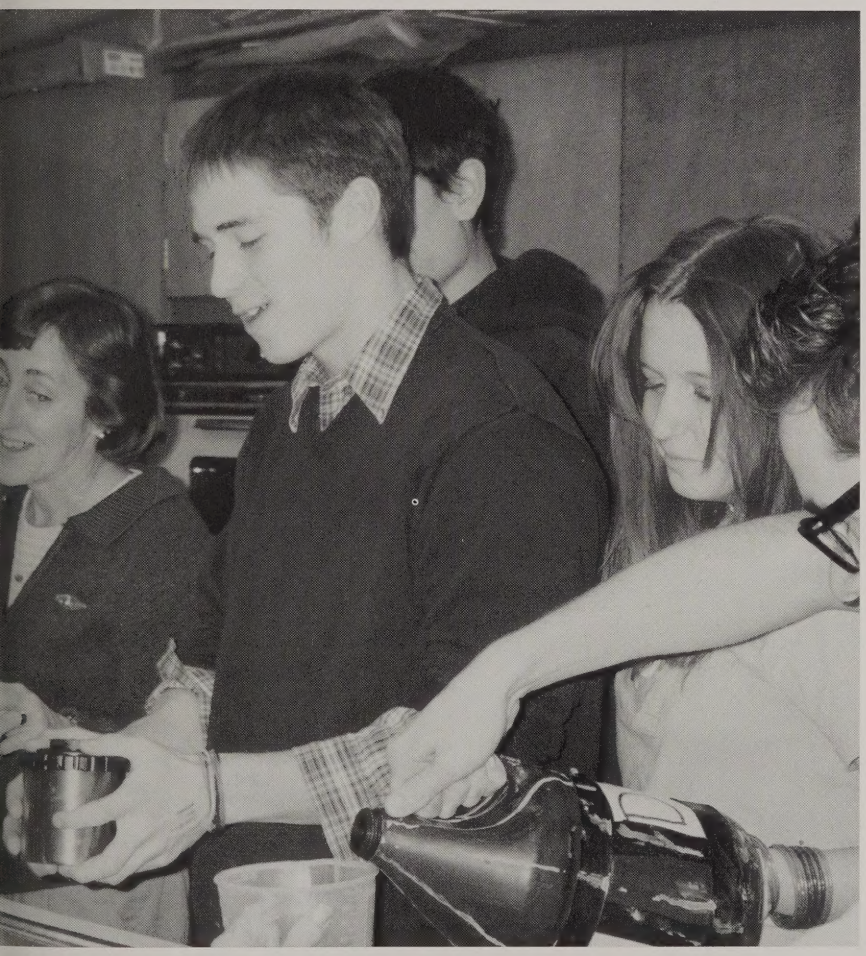


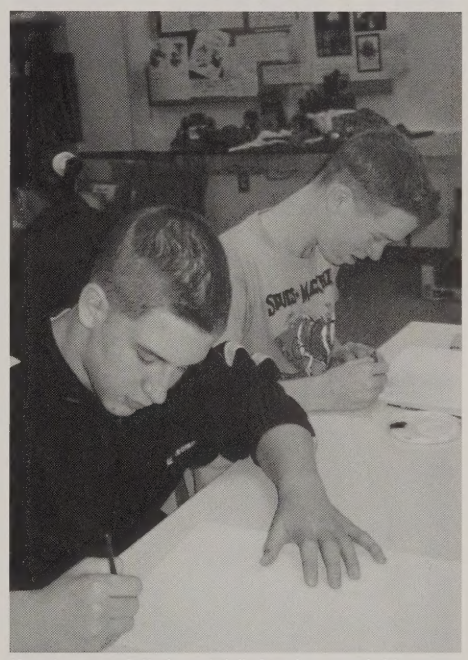


Computer Graphics II student, Senior Tim Holt, critiques his own creation. "I took computer graphics because I wanted to help my dad at work, and this is what he does," Holt said. In class, students created their ideas on paper as well as on computer.

Sights Unseen

- Art teacher Mr. Gettings is married to former-Q94 D.J. Betty Bodine.
- Art and photo students may bring in music to listen to during class.
- Cutting glass is a favorite activity amongst art students.
- Photography I students make their first cameras out of oatmeal containers.
- The Art students have a candy box they are able to eat from in class.
- The art curriculum is composed of Art, Crafts, and Photography classes.
- Art class costs about thirty dollars per student plus their art fees.





Freshmen Michael Violante and Steven Powers construct a color pattern. "I like drawing and art," said Violante. Many students who took this class considered pursuing art as a career.

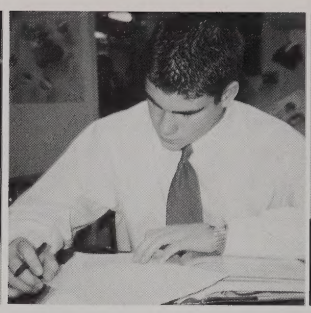
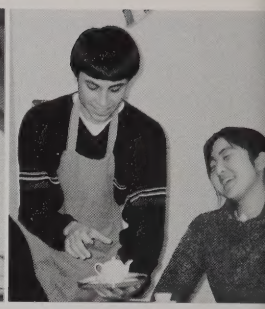
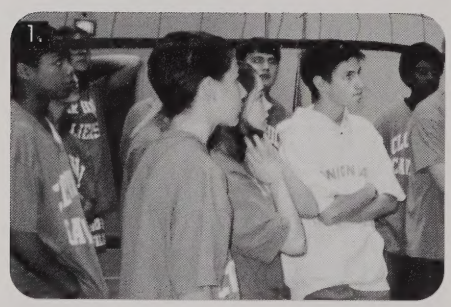
ONE STEP UP

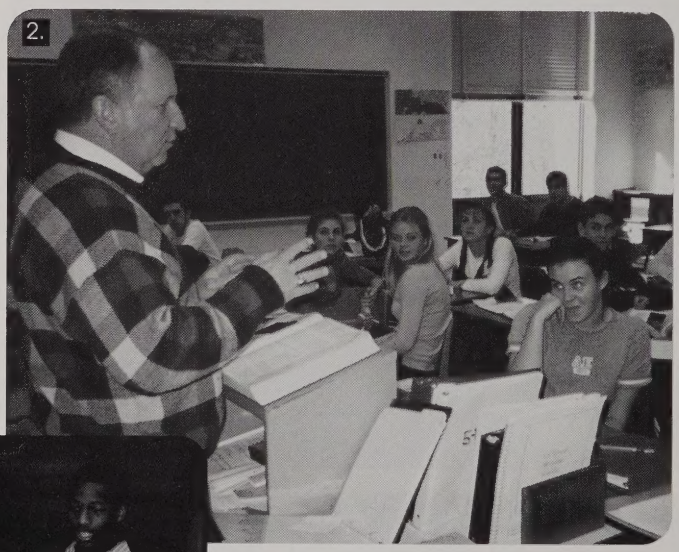


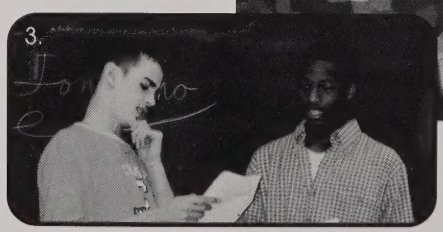


A Day in the Life of a Sophomore

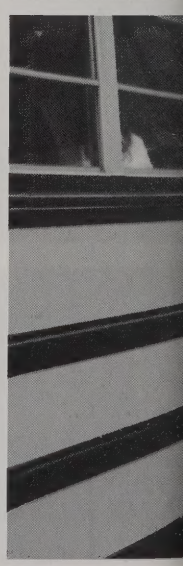
The transition from Freshman year to Sophomore year is smooth for most students because they know what is to be expected of them. The challenge of higher level courses, especially for those Sophomores taking Junior-level classes, makes the year more difficult. "Being in the Math and Science High School involves harder classes, but I've adjusted well so it doesn't seem as hard," Sophomore Will Cary said. Another change for Sophomores must is taking driver's education instead of health during the first semester. Many Sophomores will get their license upon their 16th birthday, but they don't have the freedom to drive to school yet. "I think Juniors and Seniors should be allowed to drive everyday and we should drive every other day," Sophomore Brandon Zielinski said. The freedom of driving and adjusting to more challenging academics officially includes the Sophomores as a part of the Hill.

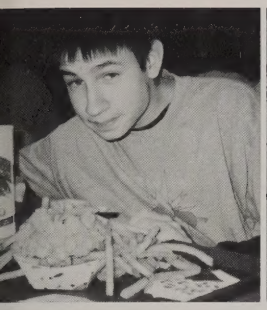


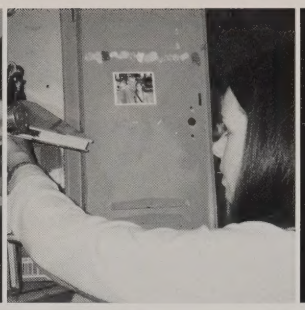




1. Gym students gather around the volleyball net. 2. Mr. Ferguson instructs his American Literature students. 3. Sophomores Eric Davis and Ronald Forbes perform a skit in Spanish.







Sophomores Megan Tuck and Kiri Thompson prepare a slide in biology. "We work well together because we have been lab partners since eighth grade," Tuck said.

Sophomore Caison Callaway reads about driving responsibly. "I think Sophomores should be allowed to drive to school only if they play sports because then their parents don't have to worry about driving them," Callaway said.

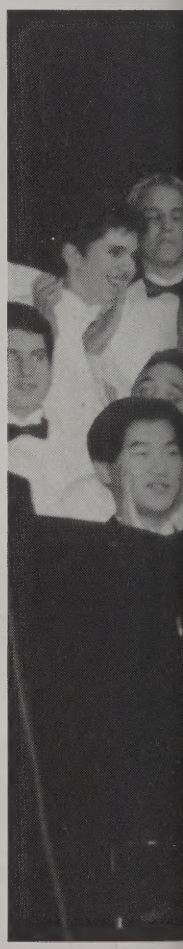
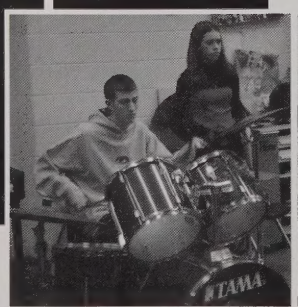
2. To obtain perfection, the orchestra concentrates on their piece selections.
3. Sophomore Blaire Morgan practices her xylophone performance.

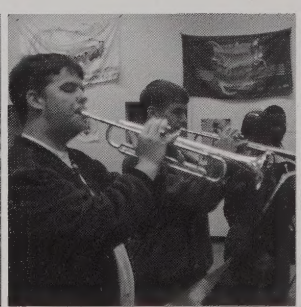
THE SOUND OF MUSIC

Band, Orchestra, and Chorus Strive for Excellence

The orchestra, chorus, and band classes demanded a lot of practice from students. "There were some times when we practiced up to twenty hours a week," said Sophomore Blaire Morgan. Some students involved themselves in multiple groups which increased their commitment to music. "Being in two classes takes a lot of time and is sometimes stressful," said Senior Jabarie Brown. The chorus classes had mandatory morning practices, while the band classes required the students to turn in weekly practice reports. The orchestra also put in many hours of hard work while rehearsing for the production of Seven Brides for Seven Brothers. "The individual practice is critical to bring the group together," said Sophomore Kenny Taggart. All the dedication payed off for these music programs when they performed in London during the winter break.



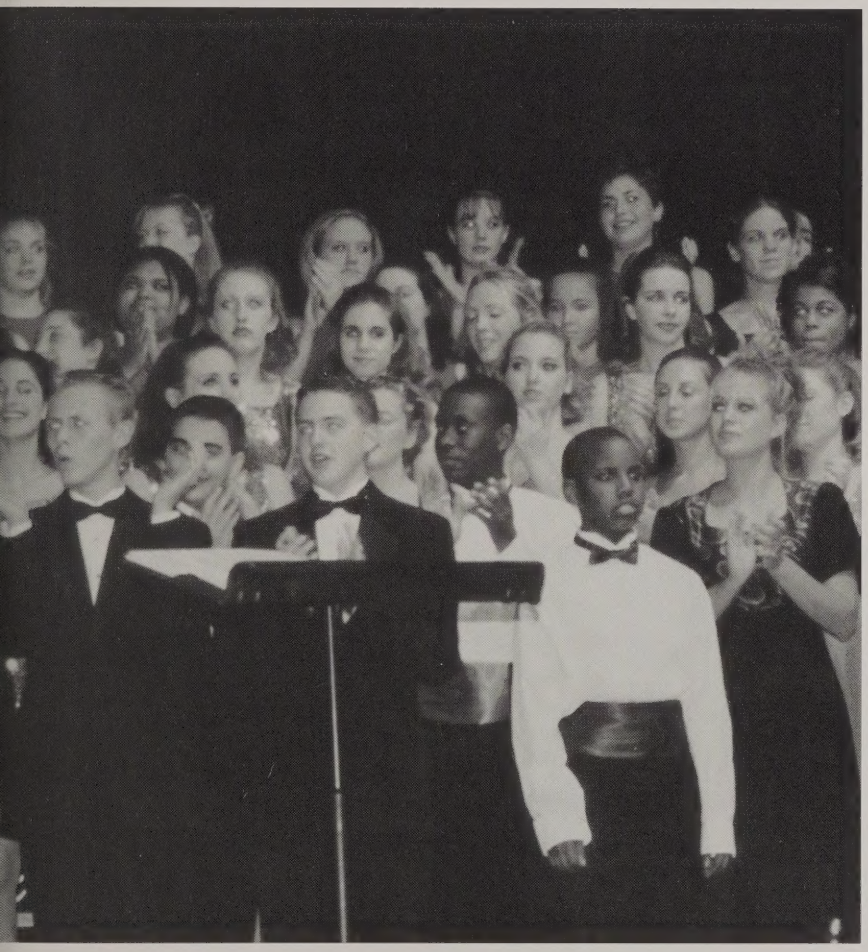




Junior Amanda White warms up on her violin. "The violin seems to come easily to me, but it does take some practice," said White. Hard work provided all the orchestra students with success.

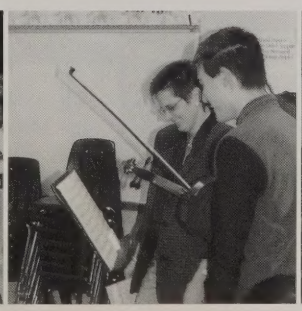
Sights Unseen

- Over 1,000 hours of practice and performance are spent in the first semester in Band.
- The marching band shoe is called a dinkle.
- The average show choir competition is over 18 minutes of non-stop singing.
- New Dimensions says a prayer before each concert.
- The chorus had a "pyramid concert" with local schools.
- Most orchestra students begin playing in middle school.
- Participation in music increases standardized test scores.

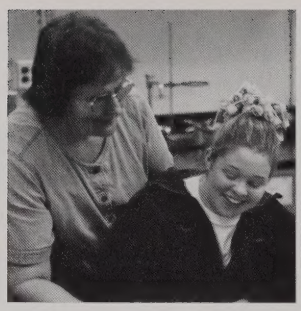


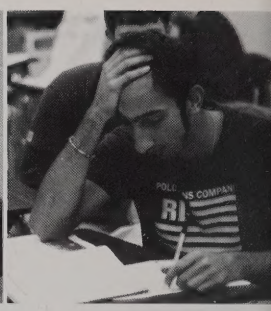
Concentrating on the music, Junior Neal Rollins plays his bass. "My freshman year, I played in orchestra. When Mr. Conley asked me to be in jazz band, I graciously accepted," said Rollins. The bass tied all the instruments together by keeping the rythmn.

The members of the combined choruses applaud their director, Mr. Lawson. This was Mr. Lawson's second year as the Choral Director.



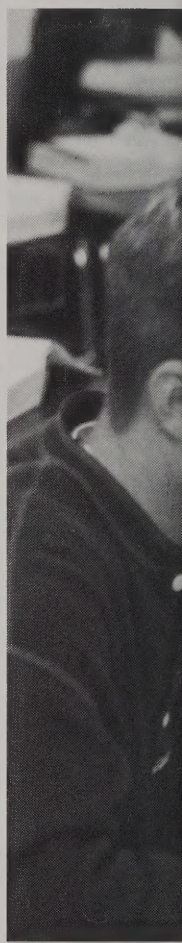
ELEVENTH HEAVEN

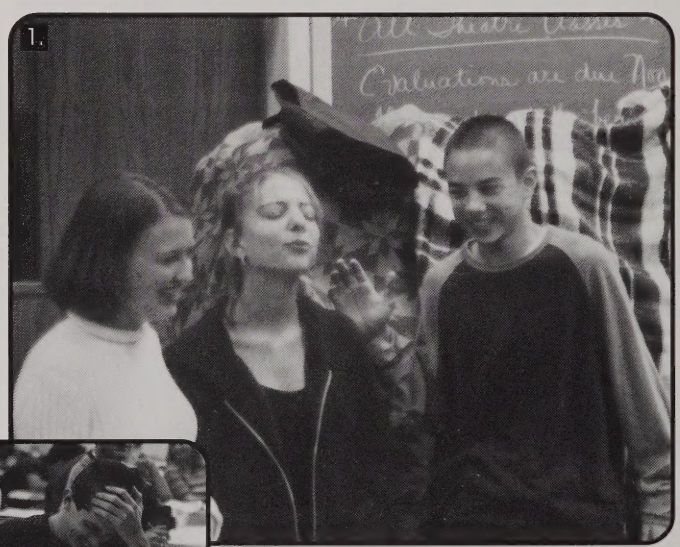


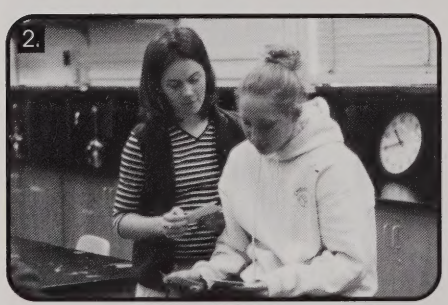


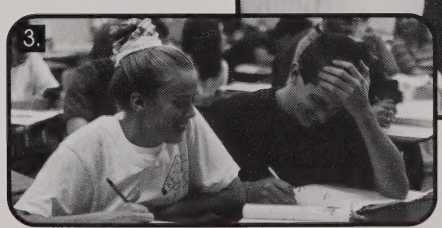
A Day in the Life of a Junior

Reading, writing, arithmetic, and plenty of studying--such are the characeristics of the Junior Class. "I think it's the hardest year and that's probably why colleges looks at students' Junior year, thinking if they can take the pressure and manage to make good grades, that they can handle a college schedule," Guidance Counselor Jane Hennessey said. The third year of high school is no time to slack off. With the annual SOL tests, plus SAT preparation, there is a great deal of additional stress. However, new positive experiences may counter some of the negative aspects associated with the year. Juniors look forward to the option of parking at school for the first time. They are also exposed to the precursor of formal Senior events in the Ring Ceremony. Many students find that the special occasions and upperclass priviledges make the stressful year worthwhile.

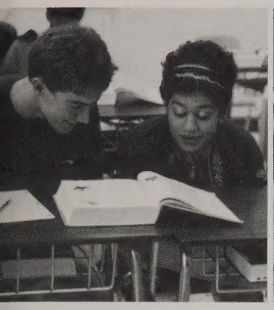


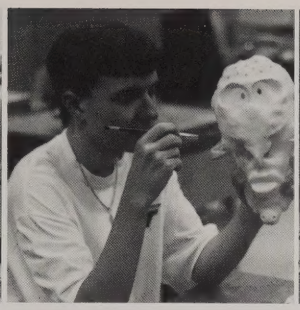


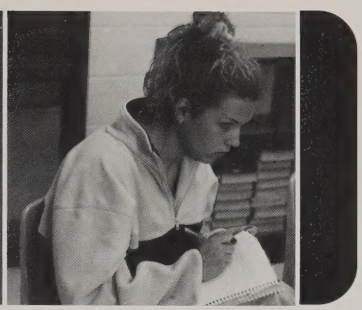


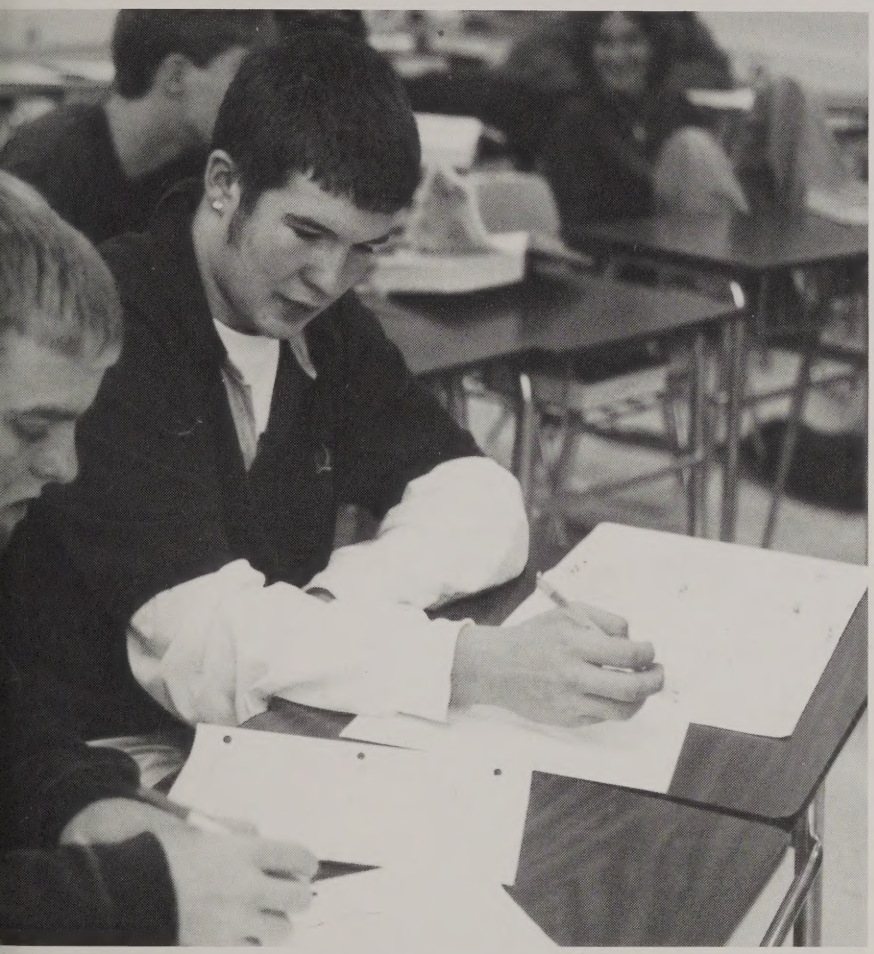


1. Juniors Erin Wyatt, Caitlin Manasco, and Marcus Kong practice their roles in Theater. 2. Juniors Meghan Scates and Christine Pearce share notecards in Research class. 3. Juniors Kensey McGrath and Scott Freer read British literature in English.









Juniors David Britts and Brenton Farrar work together on an English assignment. "English is my most important class, so I try to do my best," Farrar said. The English curriculum for Juniors includes British literature.

Junior Angie Schultz studies in the library. "The library provides a quiet place to study and get away from it all," Schultz said.

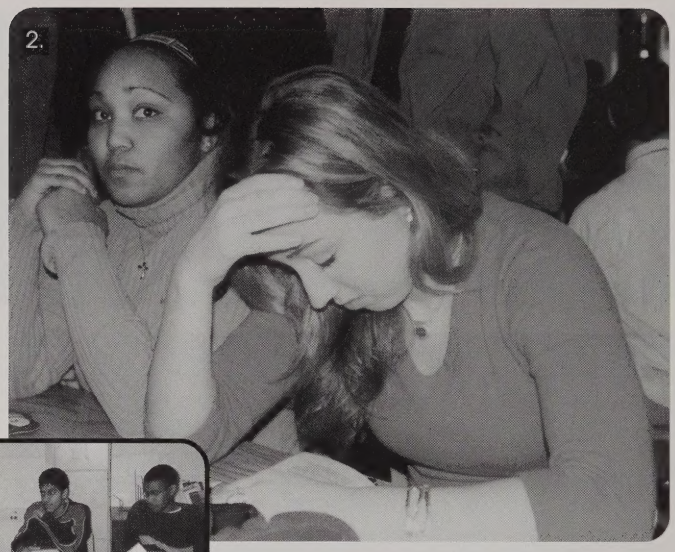
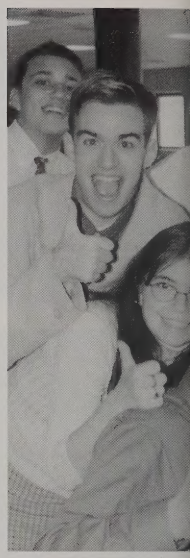
Junior Rachel McCray concentrates on her U.S. History classwork. "My favorite part of history is discussing current events," McCray said. The Junior year was the only opportunity to take U.S. History.



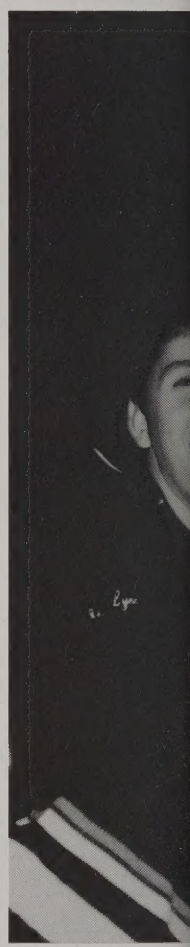


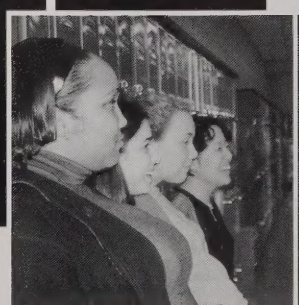
1. Senior Paddy Hirsh, Sophomore Tim Young, and Senior Don Principe laugh about an article in the newspaper. 2. Senior Megan Bailey prepares for her presentation. 3. Junior Sam Altman, Freshmen Richard Bollinger and Ashum Pandurangi, and Junior Jason Fountain discuss their debate topic.

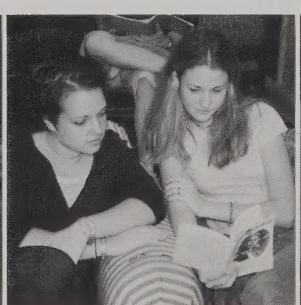
VERBAL ESSENCES

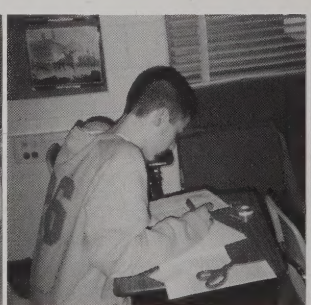
Changes in Leadership

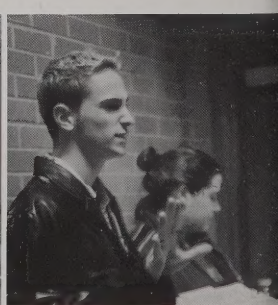
Along with the additions of many freshmen and newly interested students, the 2000-2001 Forensics and Debate teams had a couple very important people join their teams: new coaches. The Forensics team had been working only with sponsors for the past two years which forced them to find pieces on their own and bond more as a team. "Mrs. Young was a wonderful sponsor for two years, but Mr. Adams is definitely a welcome and helpful addition to the team," Senior Melissa Larkin said. The students on the debate team found new guidance in husband-wife duo, Hunter and Jackie Clark. "It was my first year in debate and they made the transition into the club very easy for me," said Sophomore Kimmie Vance. Both newly-coached teams excelled this year; the Forensics team was invited to the Crestan Classic, a National tournament in Florida, and members of the Debate team were elected to participate in the University of Virginia Debate Tournament.







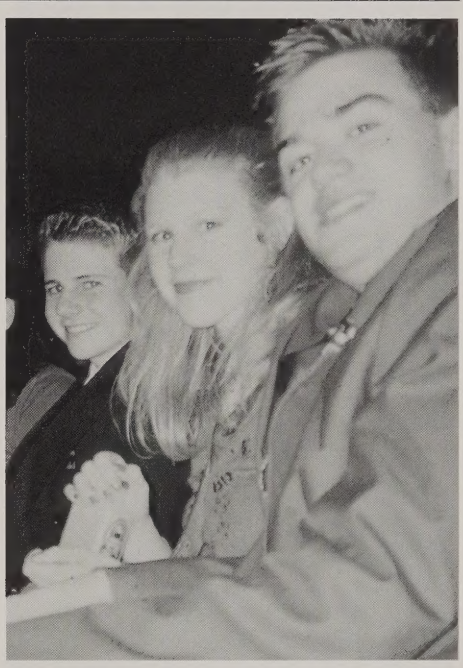




Forensics competitions are always a fun and relaxed environment. "Forensics is fun because you get to spend all day with your friends," Senior Don Principe said. The friendly atmosphere helped competitors to feel more comfortable.

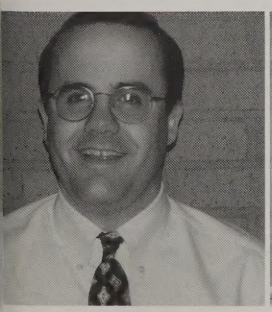
Sights Unseen

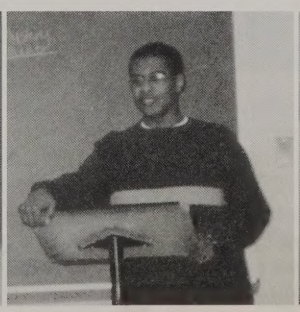
- The forensics team always gives a standing ovation to first place winners.
- The coaches of the debate team are married.
- Senior Shelby Black believes that, with the exception of our school, "ugly boys do forensics."
- While in Florida, the travel forensics team was harassed by Scottish men in kilts.
- There are seven categories for forensics competitors to choose from.
- The debate team debated on the topic of "A Right to Privacy" all year.
- Chris Rosser always rubs Mr. Adams' head for good luck before competitions.

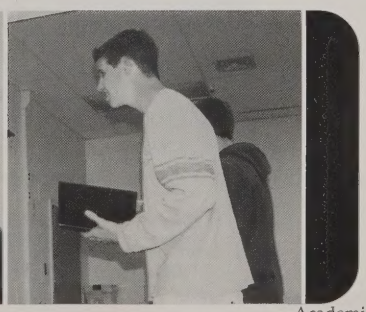


Seniors Paddy Hirsch, Melissa Larkin, and Chris McKinney wait to perform. Although stressful, competitions proved to be fun and exciting.

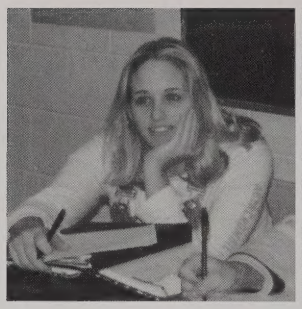
Varsity members of the forensics team pose for a picture at a tournament. "Throughout our trouble with coches, we've stayed strong as a whole," Senior Paddy Hirsh said.

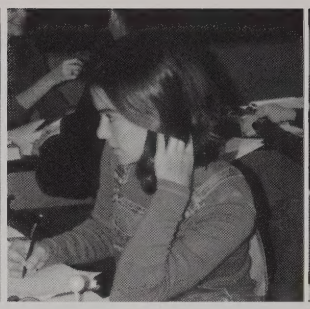


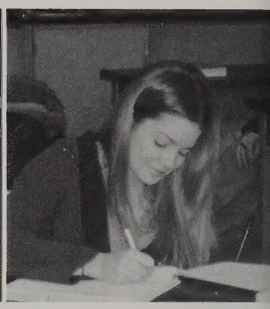




THIRSTY FOR COLLEGE







A Day in the Life of a Senior

"The greatest sense of relief I've ever felt came after finishing college applications," said Senior Keith Bachmann. Contrary to popular belief, senior year is one of the most stressful times of high school. Due to AP classes, college applications, acception and rejection letters, Varsity sports, college visits, and afterschool jobs... it's obvious that Seniors feel the pressure. Because of this stress, Seniors religiously count down the days until graduation. However, while awaiting the end of the year, Seniors often relieve their school strain through events such as the pep rally and senior privileges. The class of 2001 won their second consecutive pep rally this year and were also the first class to enjoy the privilege of eating outside in the last ten years.

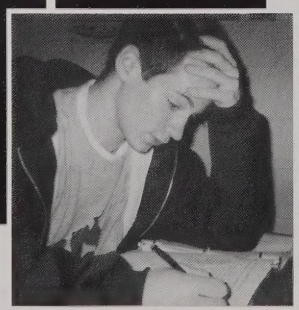
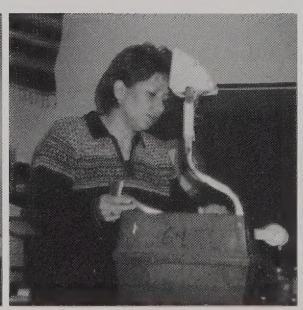
FORWARD BOUND

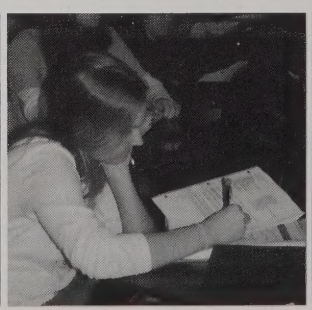
AP Classes Bring Stress

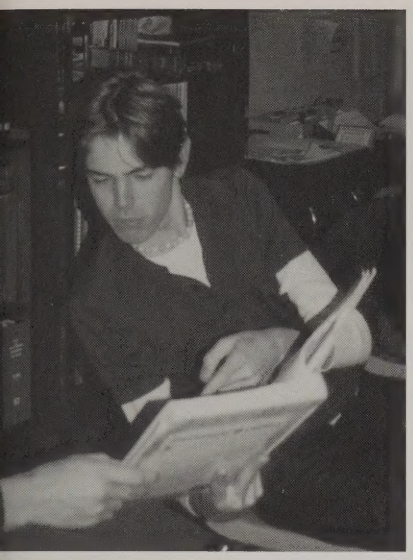
Whether Advanced Placement classes are taken because they are the next step, a way to get a Governor's seal on a diploma, or solely to receive college credit, students--mostly seniors--are loading up on these challenging classes. Some students take as few as one AP class while others take as many as five.

Because these classes are taught at a college level in a high school situation, they cause more stress than other classes. Along with all of this academic stress, seniors must also squeeze in time for applying to colleges and scholarships, only to wait anxiously by the mailbox for an acceptance letter. However, this stress will result in benefits later: AP classes bring better preparation for college, more knowledge for the future, and more capability to do multiple, strenuous tasks at once through time management.









Seniors Johan Forsman and Michael Loreto share a book in AP Government. "Mrs. Mills has prepared us to deal with the intricacies of politics in a fun way," Loreto said.

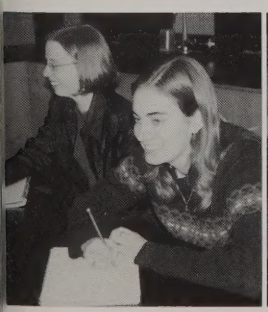
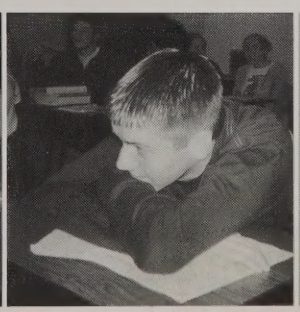
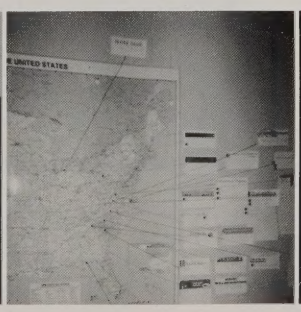
Mrs. Diane Leighty dresses up as "Chef Pearl" to teach her math class about volume using fruit. "It's a great way for students to see math in a practical way," Leighty said.

Senior Charlee Marcum skims over a college application. "The Career Center gives me the chance to research my future," Marcum said.





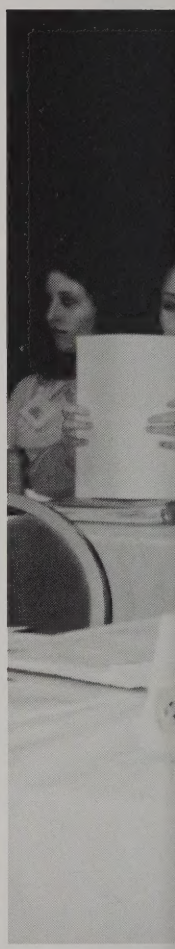


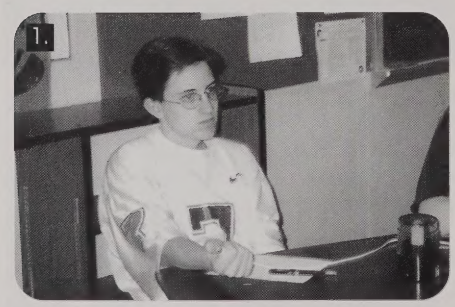
DEDICATED DELEGATIONS

Academic Team, M.U.N. Excel

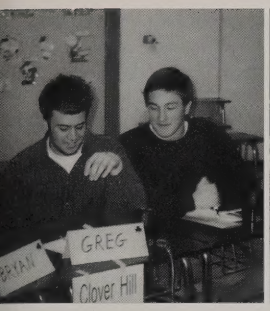
Aside from being challening, both Model United Nations and the Academic Team required participants to devote many hours after school and on weekends. Neither organization could be considered an average high school club. Model U.N. gave Juniors and Seniors a chance to get involved through discussion of global affairs. The group formally met at institutions such as Harvard, William and Mary, OCU, and VCU to debate political issues against other representative schools. Students spent the time between trips gathering information about their assigned countries.

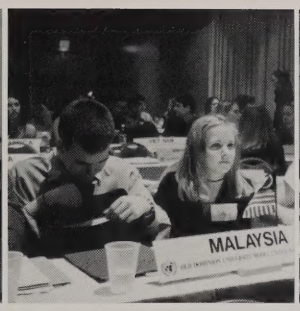
The Academic Team met twice a week to answer trivia questions. This prepared the group for their competitions against rival schools. They often met three or four times a week in preparation for an impending competition. Members also read newspaper articles and kept up with current events, since these were possible subjects for questions.

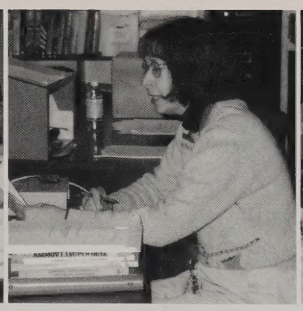


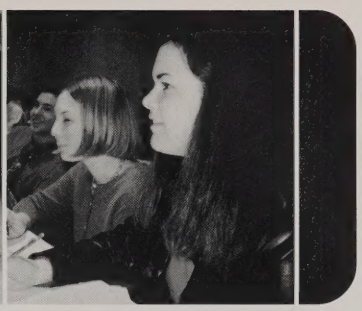


1. Senior Matt Teasley of the Academic Team practices for the Battle of the Brains. 2. The Senior team attending the Harvard Invitational Conference poses for a picture in their Boston hotel. 3. Seniors Justin Ward, Evan Smith, Liz Clarke, and Katharine Schweighardt have fun in FAO Schwartz during a break at Harvard.



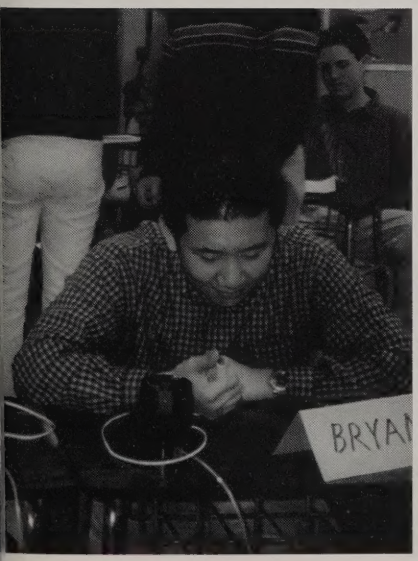


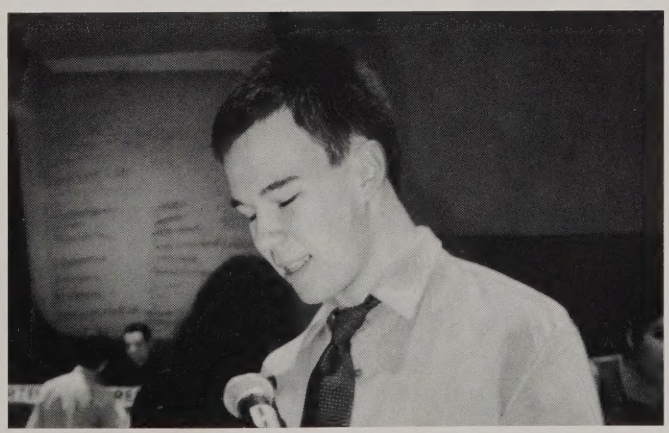




Juniors Jessica Johnson and Christine Pearce attend a Model U.N. conference at ODU. "Taking trips to different places is the best aspect of Model U.N." Johnson said.

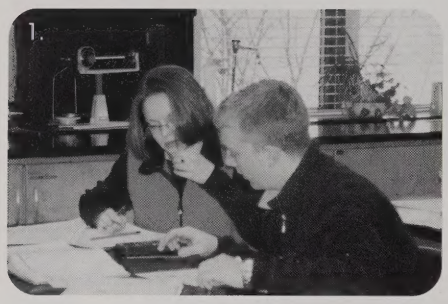
Sophomore Jane Gurnick hones her skills during practice for the Academic Team. " I was honored to be a part of the team, and hope to continue my association in later years," Gurnick said.

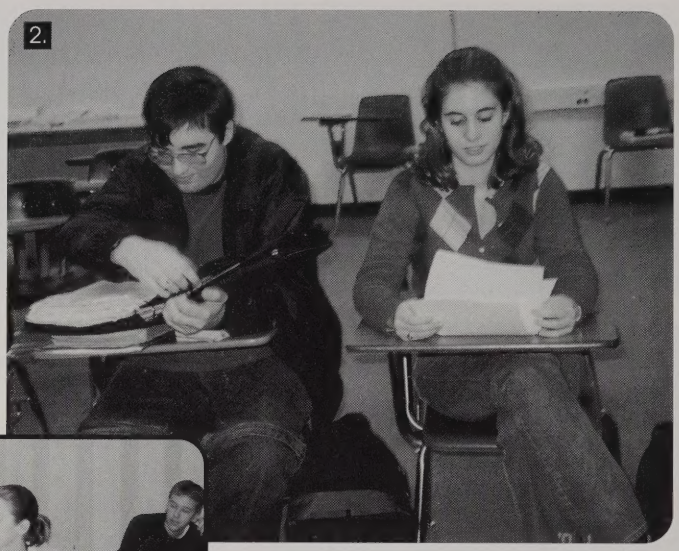


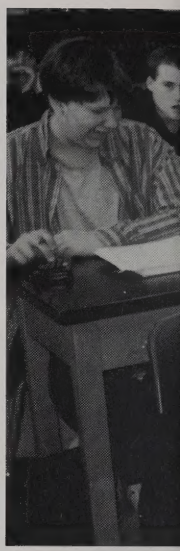


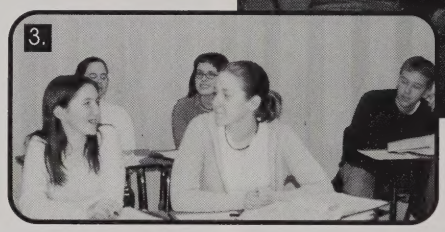
Seniors Matt Teasley and Bryan Shin compete in the Battle of the Brains Tournament. "As a team, we worked very well together, knowing that we could rely on each others' expertise," Shin said.

Senior J.J. Frankovitch speaks his country's views during a moderated caucus at ODU. "I improved my public speaking skills in Model U.N. while learning about countries that I otherwise wouldn't know existed," Frankovitch said.







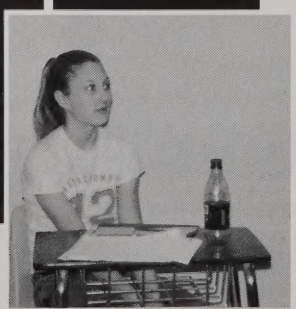


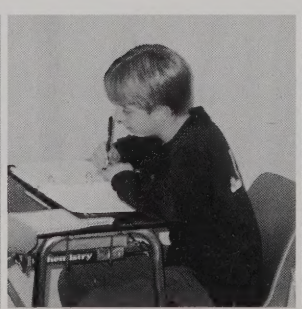
1. Juniors Kate Walters and Tyler Myer discuss a lab write up. 2. Seniors Sean Weaver and Kimberly Woods review their essays. 3. Sophomores Beverly Barksdale and Katie Ramsdell discuss their projects in class.

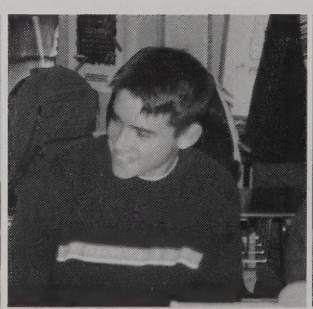
HIT THE BOOKS

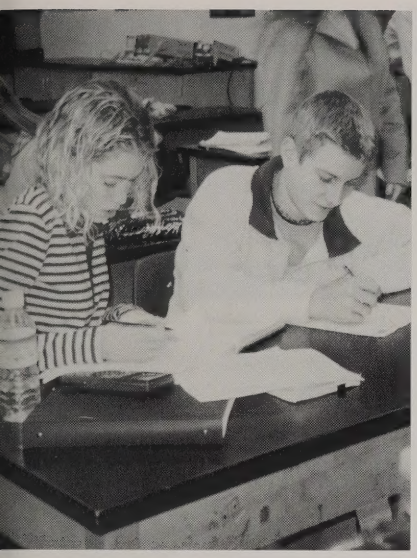
The Path to Higher Education

The Mathematics and Science program offered students a chance to capture knowledge above normal standards. Students were accepted into the school with the purpose to achieve a higher education. Math and Science Freshmen had a combined biology and chemistry class which added more pressure. Juniors were required to take a Research and Technology class where they compiled all the knowledge received throughout the course of the year on one final project. Attending the Mathematics and Science High School required students to take on more responsibility. The program definitely added more academic challenges for students while providing for the development of dilligent and determined individuals.





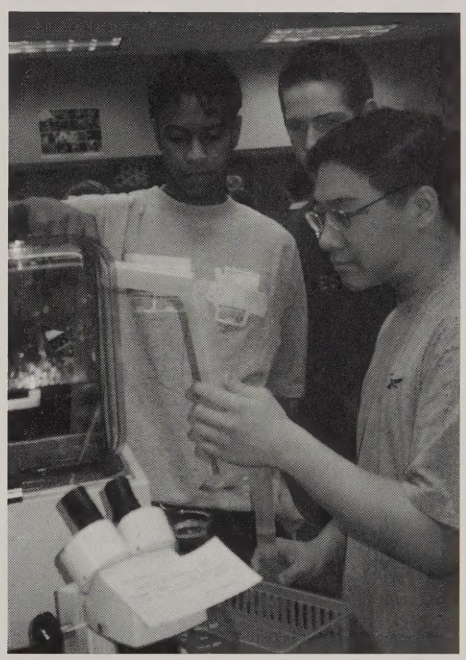




Juniors Drew Cotter and Jessica Johnson focus on academics. "The good part about Math-Science is that you get a good education while having fun in Clover Hill activities," Cotter said. Students within each school are encouraged to participate in events together.

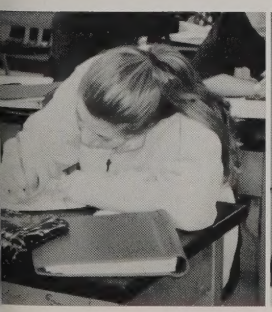
Sights Unseen

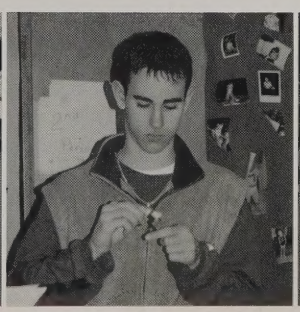
- You must apply to be a student in the school.
- It is a separate school, but located in this building.
- The school was started in 1994.
- This year's freshman class was the largest yet.
- Mr. Burns is the school's new principal.
- Math and Science has a staff of twenty-two.
- Mr. Dickerson is the school's new guidance counselor.

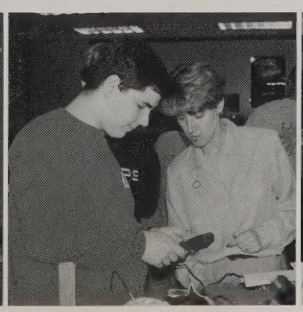


During their bio-chem class, Sophomores Curren Short, Peter Fritz, and David Shinn wrap up an experiement. "Our work is very time consuming, and it's hard to get everything turned in, " said David Shin.

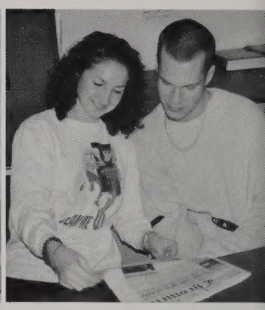
Along with his teacher, Mrs. Nicely, Sophomore Kevin Buenvenida completes a lab. "Math Science is a unique experience that provides special opportunities and helps me to set high goals," said Buenvenida.







THE WRITE STUFF



A Growing Sucess

Each year, the school newspaper, The Chronicle, and the literary magazine have become more and more popular among the students. With the help of new computer programs, both the school newspaper and the magazine became more technologically advanced . Literary magazine was a small club of dedicated writers who collaborated pieces of selected works by students in the school. The magazine came out in the early spring. The Newspaper staff tripled the number of experienced editors in the 2000-2001 school year. Four editions of The Chronicle were printed throughout the year. Included in The Chronicle were big issues in yearly school events and highlights of outstanding students. The school newspaper and literary magazine were enjoyed by both the students and staff of the school.

Senior Courtney Magill and Junior Jeanne Marsh have a friendly debate over which picture should be featured in the upcoming article. "Newspaper has been a great experience and has allowed me to do something fun, meet new people, and produce something I can be proud of," Magill said.

Senior Danielle Karnes writes theme ideas on the board. "Putting together the magazine is a very tedious and time-consuming job," Karnes said. The staff put many endless hours into the production if the magazine.

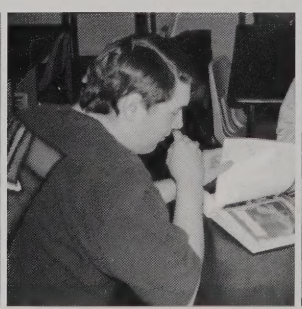
Junior Chris Ray and Senior Christine Mann take a rest during class. "The class sometimes wears you out when there is a deadline to meet, but overall the class is a relaxing one," Mann said. The newspaper put together many issues of The Chronicle.

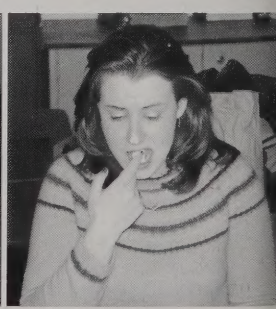
1. Junior Lindsay Bressinger shows Junior Robby Tucker what makes a picture "yearbook worthy." 2. The 2000-2001 Ducemus editors take a moment out of their busy schedules to pose for a picture. 3. Sophomores Jessica Doyle and Katherine Lynch try to think up inventive titles.

CROP 'TIL YOU DROP

"Happy Yearbook"

Many believe that yearbook is a slack class. However, even though it was definitely a break from the normal routine, yearbook class could get crazy at times. Picture 20 students fighting to get on seven computers to try to finish their stories by deadline, and then four of the computers refusing to print or coming up with an error. Yes, things did get hectic. "On the first day of class, I was excited because I thought it was going to be so slack, but it's a lot more work and stress than I had expected," Sophomore Kathryn Baystar said. Although nerves may have been fried around deadline time and tempers flared, the Yearbook staff and editors were normally very cooperative and pleasant to each other. So while deadlines got closer, stories weren't being finished, pictures weren't being cropped correctly, and computers were breaking down, the motto of this year's class, "Happy Yearbook", stayed close at mind.

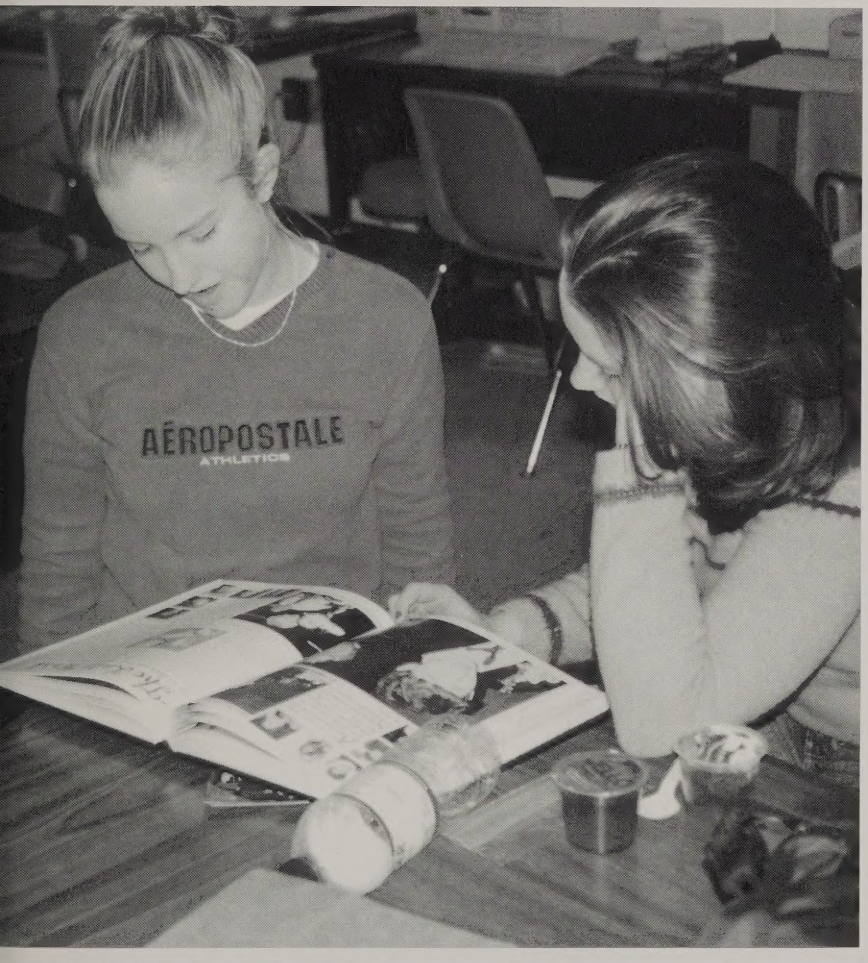


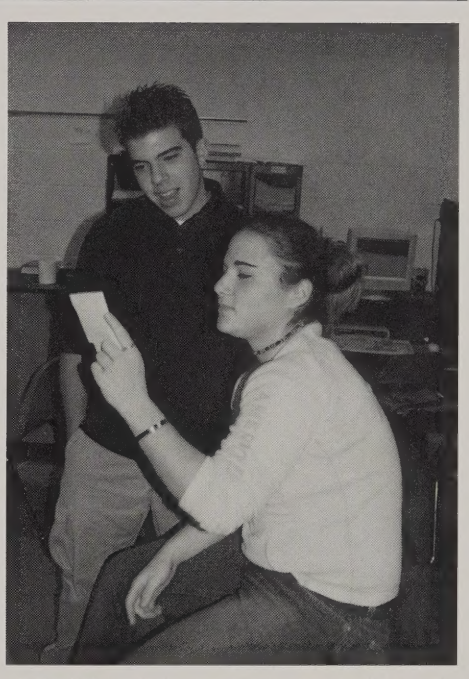


Seniors Hallie Yeager, Melissa Nicosia, and Lindsay Champion look through a group of pictures while trying to distinguish the good ones from the bad. "Finding pictures that will work right is always a challenge", said Nicosia. Editors struggled to find the best pictures to comprise the Ducemus.

Sights Unseen

- The ratio of girls to guys in Yearbook is about 9:1.
- Mrs. Hensley can often be quoted saying "Loser!" and "Whatever!"
- The staff kindly refers to Tim Capel as "Tiny Tim."
- The entire back corner of the room was decorated with pictures picked by the staff.
- One of the two Editors-in-Chief, Liz Clarke was known as "The Worker"...
- ...Karen Zatkulak was known as "The Eater."
- Trevor Thompson was selected as the Official Yearbook Computer Technician.





Junior Robby Tucker and Senior Lauren Claytor discuss the positive and negative attributes of a picture. "Sometimes the pictures we want to use are not of the best quality, and it is always good to have someone else's opinion," said Claytor. Working in groups can help speed up the picture selection process.

Sophomore Laurie Huebner and Junior Jan Pinkston scan a past yearbook for ideas. "I enjoyed this class and look forward to participating in it again next year as an editor. I learned a lot about both leadership and yearbook techniques this year from the editors and feel prepared for next year," said Pinkston.

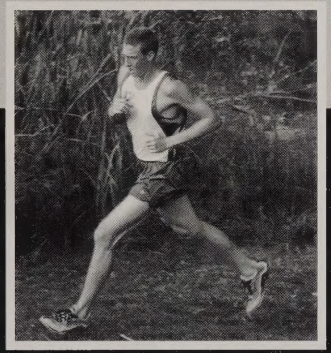
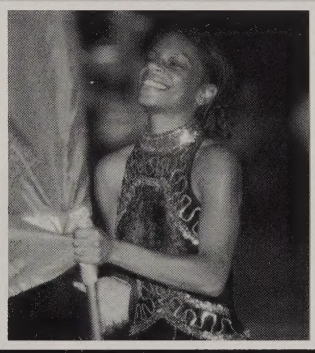
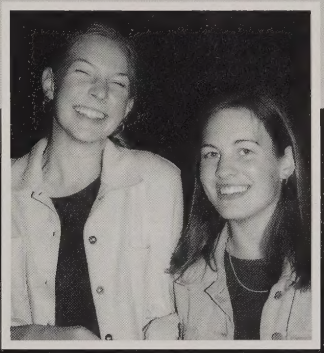
Students Interact with the Community







Through interaction and the support of others we strengthen ourselves, build upon our individuality, and shapen the people we become. We remember the laughter, cherish the silence, and yearn for the company of our memories. The challenge of HIgh School- "the best years of our lives"- will forever broaden the potential for success and remind us of where we started. But no matter where we go, we will always be stars. Not for what we will achieve, but for who we will become.

Congratulations Lauren!

Our little girl has grown into a beautiful young woman physically and mentally. We are so very proud of you and all you have accomplished. Now you begin your life as a young adult. "We hope you dance" as the song goes, and wish you much happiness and success.

We love you very much ...

Mom & Dad

Lauren,

You are all I could have asked for in a sister. I can remember playing in the backyard, fighting, watching you excel in school and on the soccer field. Remember, I will always love you and I couldn't be prouder of anyone than I am of you.

Your brother,

T.J. Claytor

Aaron~

Your strong commitment to Truth and your unselfish love for others reflects the joy and deep love you have for Christ. You are a blessing to us all who truly know you. We love you Bear!

Sara,
We are so proud of you!

"Stay grounded in the values you cherish

Stay centered in the good and the light

Stay focused on the path you have chosen

Stay hopeful your dreams will take flight!"

Love,
Mom, Dad, Samantha, and Ross

Congratulations

Class Of 2001

Dearest Meredith,
It has been a gift to watch you grow into a beautiful young woman making your own decisions for the future. You have our love and respect for your hard work and accomplishments.

Love,
M.O.M., Don, and Brad

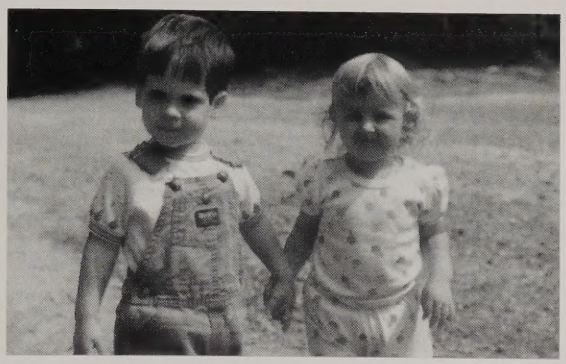
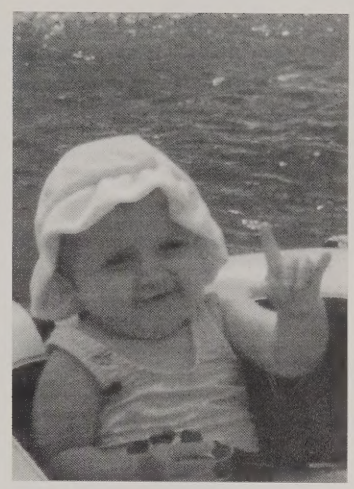
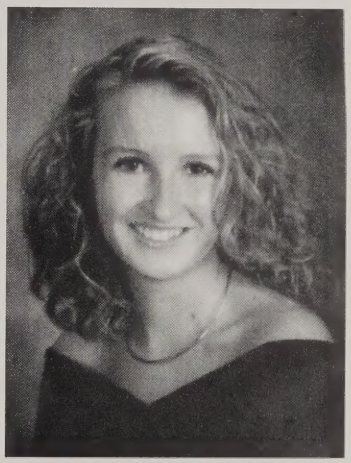
Danielle...

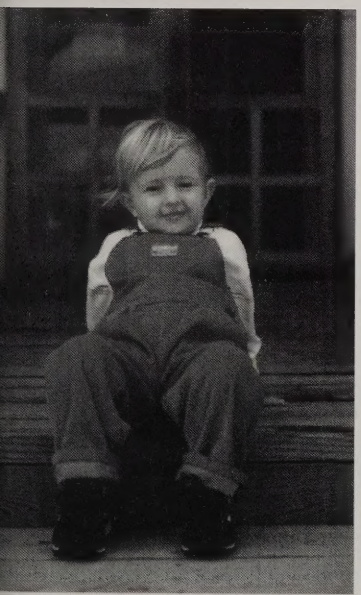




As a baby, you made us beam,
As a toddler, you made us laugh,
As a girl, you made us happy,
And as a young lady, you made us proud,
But the most important thing you made us...
Is love you with all our heart.

Thank you for being who you are and sharing yourself with us.





Love Always,
Mom, Dad, and Samantha

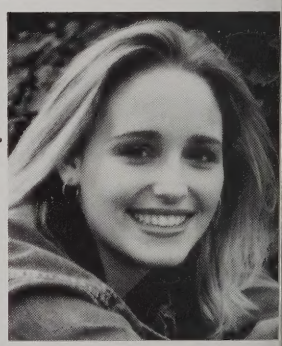
Courtney,

We are so proud of you and your accomplishments.
You have always been such a joy to us!

All of our love,
Mom, Your Family



Lauren,
We are so proud of your accomplishments and the woman you have become. You bring joy to all those around you. Wherever life may lead you, may you always find love, happiness, and peace as you reach for the stars. Most of all when you get the choice to sit it out or dance, we hope you dance. We hope you dance!

Love always,
Mom, Dad, and Brittany

Mandi Poo-

We have seen you grow from being our little girl to being a lovely talented young lady. During the years you have made us proud of all your accomplishments in high school and before and you always will. Never lose your talent, kindness, smile, spirit, and ability to succeed because that's what makes you a wonderful person. Stand tall and remember to always give faith a fighting chance. Even though the door to high school has closed we know another door will open for you on your way into college and your future. We send our very best wishes with you when you go on into your future to fulfill your dreams. Every step of the way we are there for you with our love, support, and care and don't forget that. We love you and we'll miss you!

Love always,
Mom, Dad, Chelsea, and Ridge
Always search for the good in everything, follow your heart, and if you have a chance to sit it out or dance, DANCE!!

Class of 2001

Dear Kristen,
We are so blessed to be your parents.
Words cannot express
The love and pride we feel for you.
You possess so many gifts;
Your gentle and generous spirit,
Your mischievous wit,
Your wonderful creative energy.
Never forget
You have the power
To make all your dreams come true.
Love Forever,
Mom and Dad

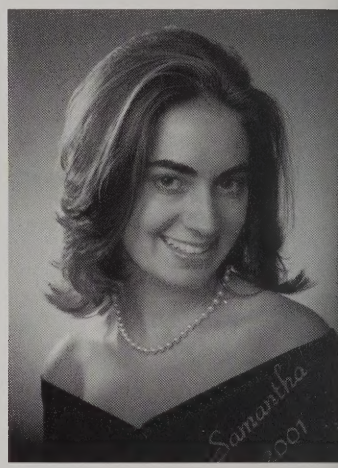
WE LOVE YOU!
Mom & Dad

Samantha,

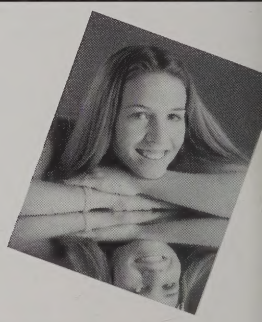
You've risen to the occasion time and time again and we are so very proud of you. We are in awe of all that you have accomplished through the years. We feel truly blessed having you as our daughter. As you continue on your path in life remember that Rome wasn't built in a day...and there is no wrong in doing right. Your inner goodness and strength will continue to shine through you and everything you do. You're a beautiful, intelligent young woman that has a lot to offer the world and the world will be better for it. So you go girl!!

We love you!

Dad, Mom, & Wesley



Congratulations, Melissa Jane Nicosia



When we brought you home our hearts were full of hope and joyful expectations.
You've given us so much in every moment.
...From your first step
...through activities with friends
we've watched you grow.
...So much enthusiasm and drive to succeed
giving your everything to all you do.
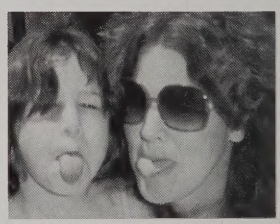
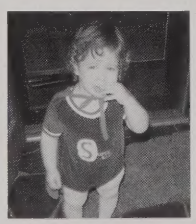
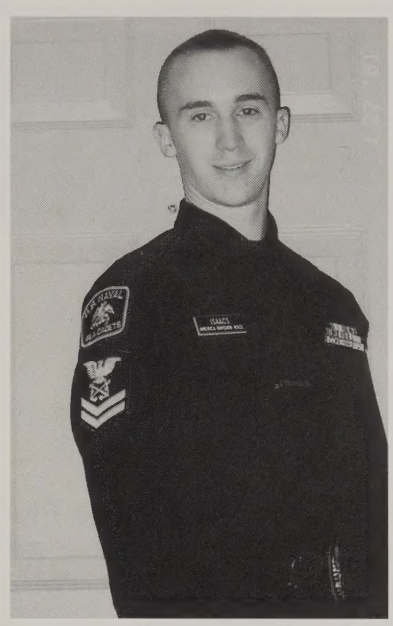
You've served as a model for your younger brother who looks up to you.
Now your steps at graduation
bring you to a different world
...New hopes and challenges
...Our dreams are in you
...Our hopes are for your success.

Love Mom, Dad, and Chris







Dearest Jim,
As you embark on the Adventure of your Life, so full of Promise, our prayer for you is that your soul has grown deep, strong roots so that when the seas swell and the winds blow and the rains fall, you will not be swept asunder.
Peace and Joy to you with all our Love,
Dad, Kathryn, and Kate

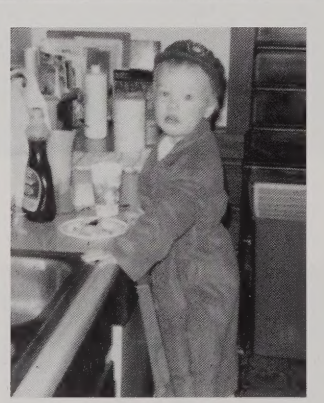
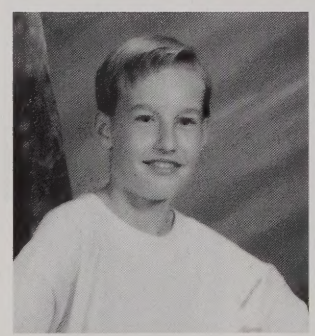
Hey Me!
Way to go!

Be true to yourself...
and remember that you will always have us!
We are proud of you Paddy! Love you!
Mom, Dad, Kirsten, Wendy and Matt.

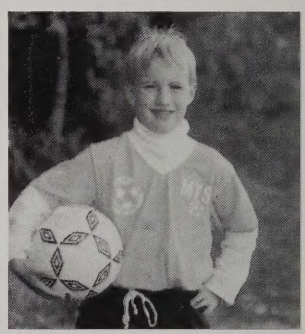
Andrew

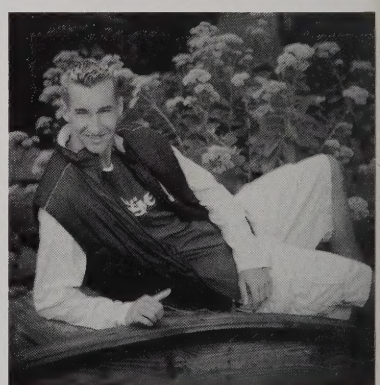




In Celebration of your graduation, we share these "life's lessons learned" with you.
Don't let the odds keep you from pursuing what you know in your heart you were meant to do.
Remember that great love and great achievements involve great risk.
Judge your success by what you had to give up to get it.
Pray. There is immeasurable power in it.
Don't let weeds grow around your dreams.
Don't take family, good friends or good health for granted.
Laugh often - it is good for the heart, head and soul.
Remember the ones who love you.
Come home for holidays.
Call your dad.
And know that your family will always love you and be there for you.

Love,
Mom & Dad





To Josh-

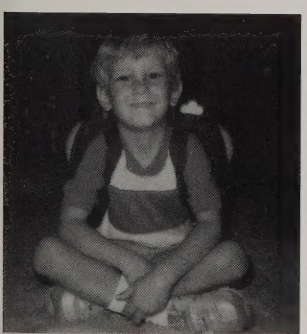
It's something unpredictable
But in the end that's right.
I hope you had the time of your life.

With Unending Love,
Mom, Dad, and Jesse

Andrea,

We are extremely proud of your high school accomplishments and know that they are the beginning of the things you will achieve in the future. Our very best wishes go with you as you move toward fulfilling your dreams.

Love,
Dad, Mom, and Julia

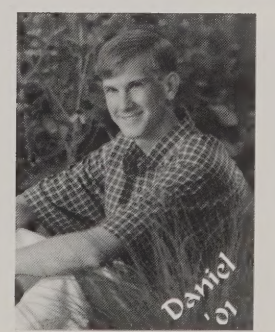


Daniel

Trust your heart- Use your head
Find your own road
And have a good journey!

We are proud of you and your accomplishments.

Love, Mom & Dad



Chad, we're so proud of you!

From throwing your oatmeal bowl to Christina dressing you up in her
Dancing costumes, you've grown up to be an Honest and wonderful man!

When you cried, we matched you tear for Tear, and when you laughed, we grinned from ear to ear;
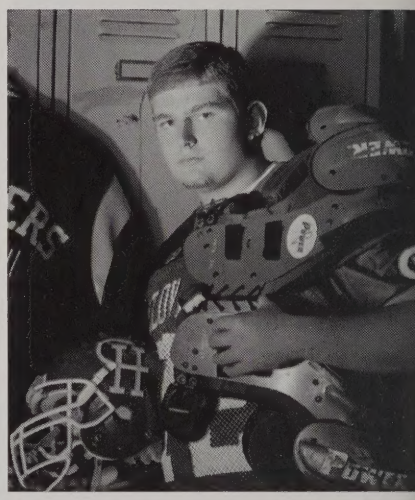
When you were wrong, we've stood face-to-face
And put you in your place,
But more importantly we've always stood side-by-side
And hand-in-hand in everything you do.

We've done our part and heart-to-heart
You're Daddy's Little Man
And Mama's Baby Boy!!!!
We'll always be watching over you as
Our love continues to grow.
Love,
Mom, Dad, and Christina



Stefanie Blair Schulman

We are very proud of your many personal and academic achievements throughout the years and know the best is yet to come. We love, support and wish you happiness in whatever you do in life.

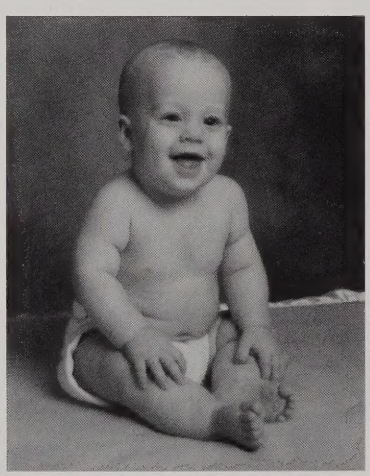
For Love of Our Son



From the first time we saw you
We knew you were special
Our love will be with you always
Especially as you journey from home
Out thoughts and prayers will be with you
As you continue your education and Begin the rest of your life.
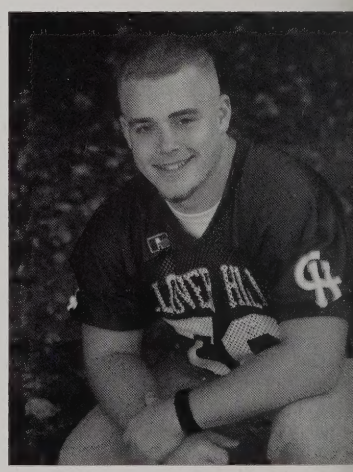
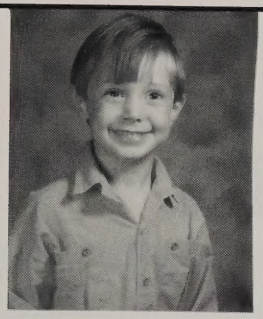
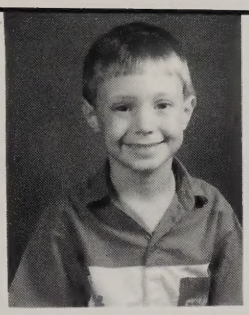
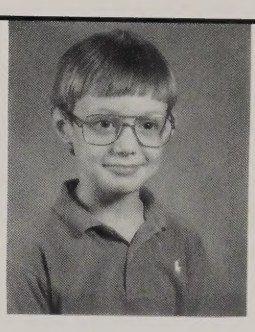
Be proud, your own man, and honest,
These things along with your upbringing
Will take you as far as you're willing to go.
Our love will be with you always.

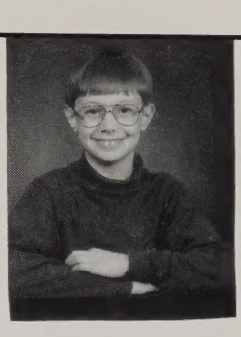
Mom and Dad

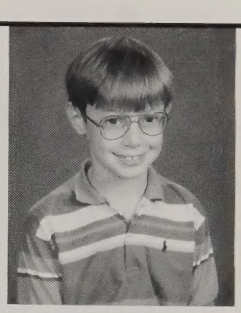






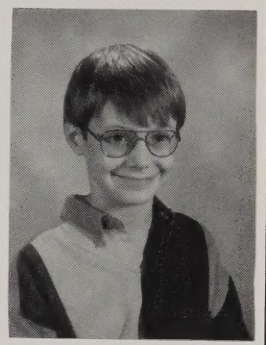






Dearest Ryan,

Has it really been seventeen years? We are not ready for you to be a senior, but apparently you are. Watching you grow has been the most enjoyable experience of our lives. You have brought such pride and joy to our home with your smile, warm personality, and wit. Even during the changes of life, you have always shown your love openly. You are truly a gift from God to be cherished as long as we live.

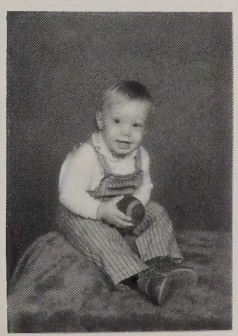


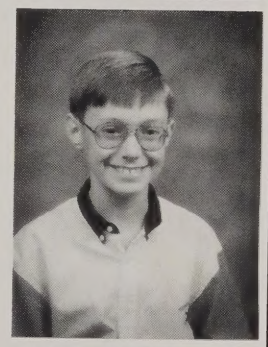
We have watched you mature into a wonderful, intelligent young man with a strong set of moral and ethical values. Life's struggles have only made you stronger. As you enter this next life change, we are confident that your decisions will be made with much prayer and faith. You WILL excel in everything you do. We will always be there "cheering" for you.

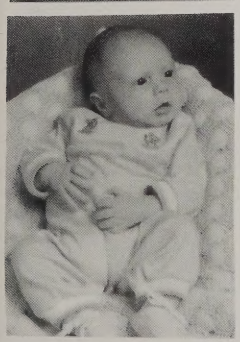
Thank you for gracing our lives with your love. Remember, you are our pride and joy – our very own little boy! We are so proud to be your parents!

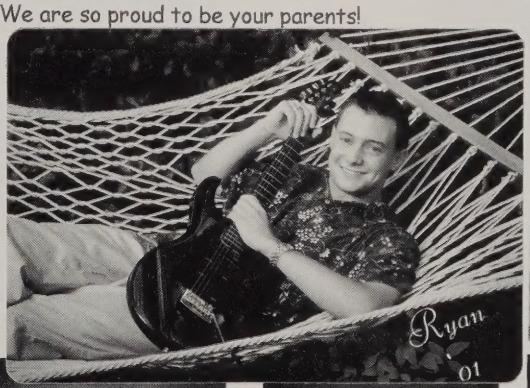
With much love,

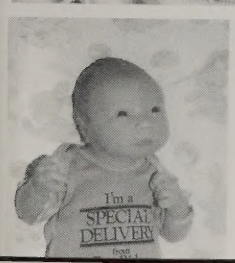
Mom and Dad

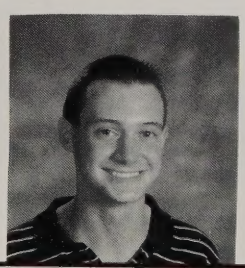


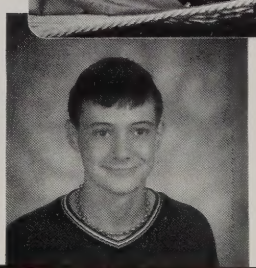


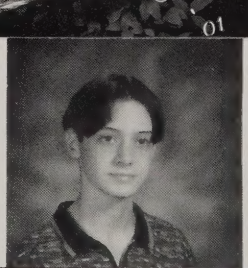


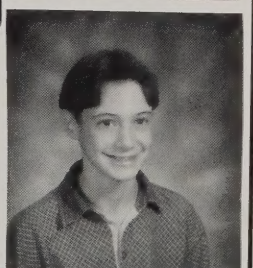












Amanda

From preschool to high school
You've been our shining star

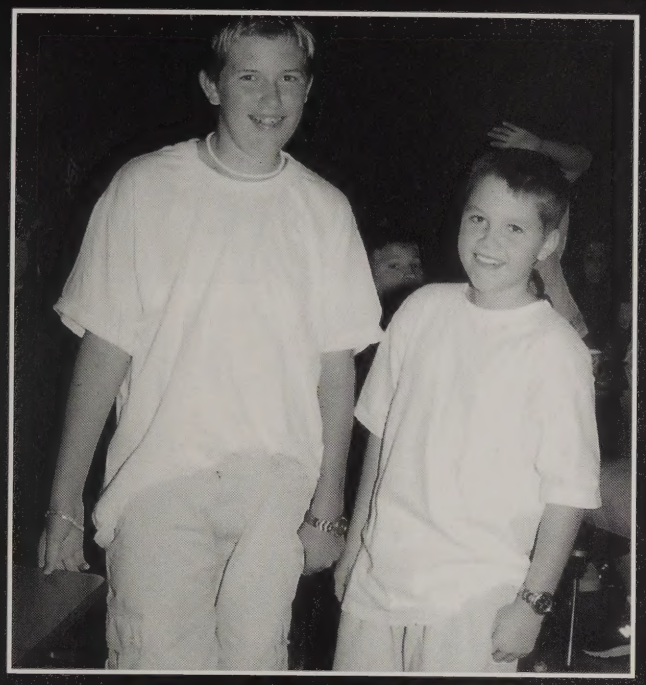
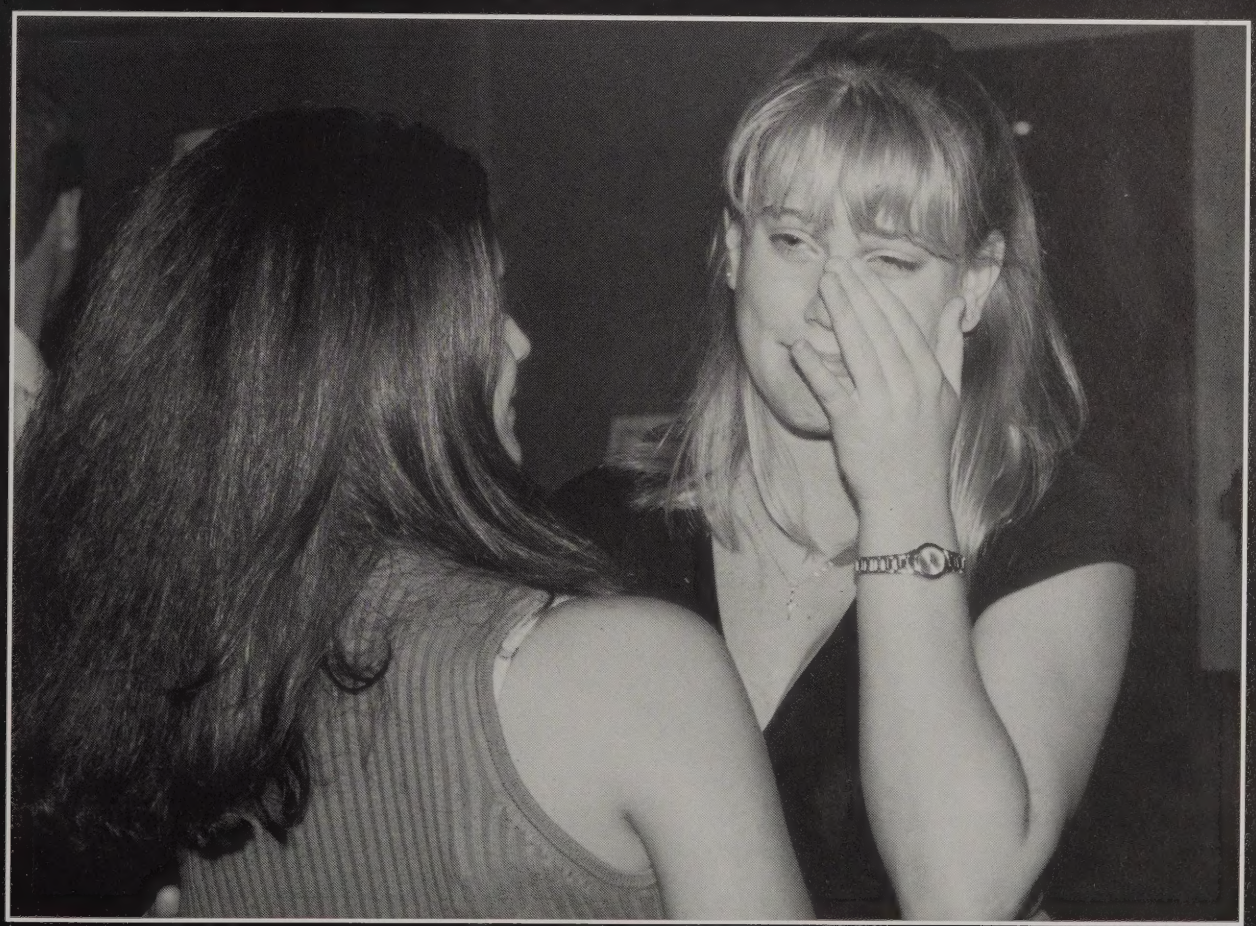
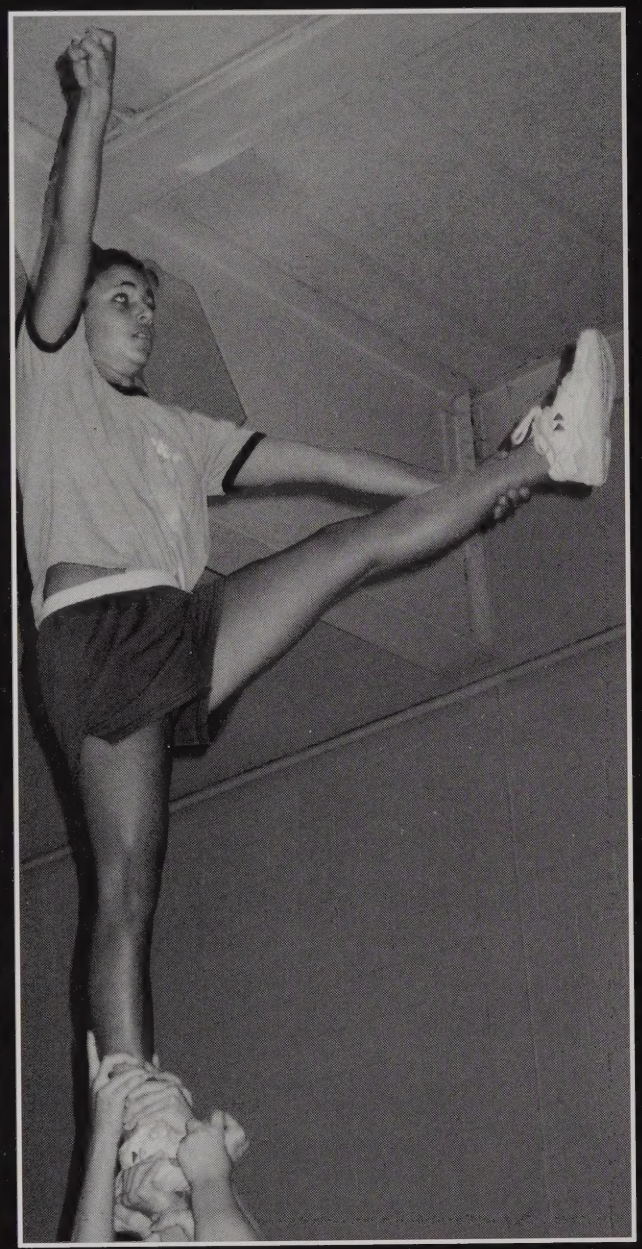
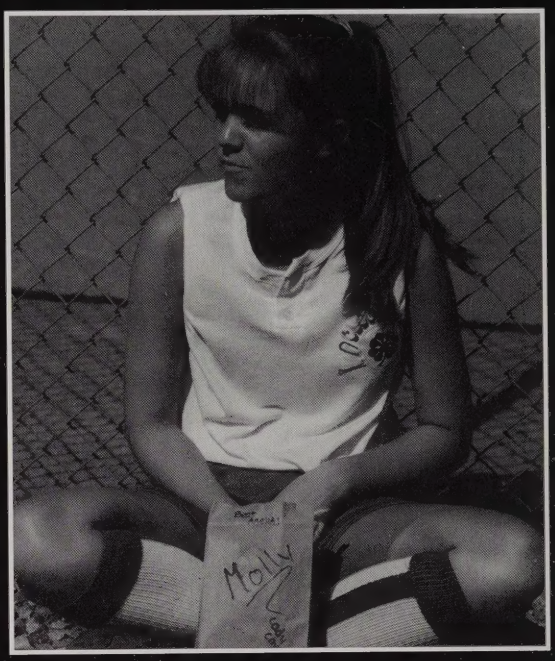
Seeing Stars

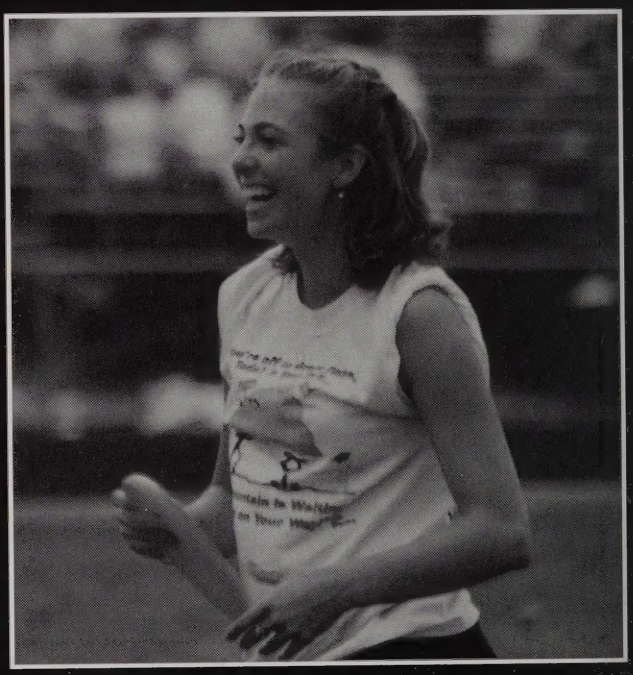
Ahh... the time has finally come to unpack our lockers, finish up the final exams, and pull out the suntan lotion. Another year has gone by, and as we look back, we realize how quickly it has passed. We remember the excitement of Spirit Week, the controversy of the 2000 Presidential Election, and the "spring fever" after Spring Break. We saw each other shine like stars through all of our accomplishments, happiness, and smiles. Now, as we look to the future in anticipation, our luster will not fade. With bittersweet emotions, we will move on while continuing to remember the stars among which we were surrounded. As we embrace the future, may we all continue to shine.











"This is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is, perhaps, the end of the beginning."
Winston Churchill

First of all, we would like to thank all of the yearbook staff, editors, and Mrs. Hensley – without them this yearbook would not have been possible. This year our book progressed greatly, and the production demanded the utmost time, energy, and dedication from all of its creators. They did a phenomenal job of helping to put this book together, and we appreciate their dedication.

Second, we would like to express our deepest gratitude to our Jostens' representative, Mrs. Jan Defalco. Her brillant ideas, patient attitude, and time spent working with us truly made this yearbook, and our cover, possible. "Chip and Dale" would like to say thank you and best of luck in the future.

To "Mama Hensley," we cannot thank you enough. Your friendly attitude, dedication, patience, helpfulness, calm demeanor under stress, and understanding personality will stay with us forever through this yearbook and all our memories of the last three years. We will never forget, "Whatever, whatever," "Cool School! - Time for lunch!"...and always remember "Happy yearbook!" Good luck next year!

This year's book, the 2001 Clover Hill Ducemus, Volume 29, "Seeing Stars", was produced under the leadership of the Editors-in-Chief, Liz Clarke and Karen Zatkulak. Its 240 pages were printed on a sheet fed press on 9" by 12" #80 glossy enamal paper. It had a press run of 1250 copies. The 32 four-color pages, 32 spot color pages, and the remaining black and white pages were created on G3 Macintoshes using Adobe Pagemaker 6.5.

Best of luck to the editors and staff of the 2002 Ducemus!
